HBO SATELLITE TV BANDIT CONFESSES

Captain Midnight speaks out. On April 27, John MacDougall made national headlines when he ambushed HBO's satellite television signal to protest scrambling. "I did it for the right reasons," he says in an exclusive interview.

With the new Panasonic® C-2000A receiver, changing satellites isn't even remotely difficult.

Panasonic has just made the C-2000 receiver even better. Reliable and affordably priced, the C-2000A offers the convenience of remote control, Ku and C-Band compatibility and simplicity of operation. What's more, direct channel access has now been added.

So continue to sit back and relax while the 2000A's detachable wireless remote control unit comfortably puts a full range of functions right at your fingertips. Like satellite selection. Up-down channel tuning. Volume control and power on/off. And now, direct channel selection.

In addition, the C-2000A offers quality performance and provides matched styling and convenient interconnection with the PAP-400 antenna actuator for a complete system.

All Panasonic receivers are descrambler compatible. But of course, that's the kind of technologically advanced performance you'd expect from a Panasonic receiver. Like our recently introduced C-1000. It's an ideal slave receiver or prime unit for the budget-minded, while offering reliable high-quality reception. One signal after another.

So if you're purchasing your first receiver or you're ready to upgrade...check out the new Panasonic C-2000A. With remote control, of course.

THE TRAGEDY OF CAPT. MIDNIGHT

John MacDougall's misguided act clouded the viewing rights issue.

Our cover feature this month is the exclusive story of John R. MacDougall, the infamous Captain Midnight. It's a sad story in many ways. MacDougall is a young man, 25 years old, who saw his satellite TV business dry up after HBO began scrambling full-time last January. As he put it so poignantly, "I have been watching the American dream slip from my grasp."

MacDougall's story is sad, too, because although he committed a crime when he overpowered HBO's signal on Galaxy 1 with his protest message last April, his motives were honorable. He says he was trying "to focus public attention on a problem that affects millions of Americans."

But the saddest part of the story is the fact that MacDougall, a bright, sincere man, failed to appreciate the consequences of his act. He didn't understand that when he struck in the guise of Captain Midnight, thinking he was doing something to help every satellite dish owner in America, he actually set back the cause of viewing rights.

By tampering with a communications satellite, MacDougall opened a Pandora's box, raising issues of national security that far outshadowed the scrambling controversy. Mother Jones magazine captured the sensational implications of MacDougall's raid in its October issue cover story, "Captain Midnight, HBO, and World War III." By resorting to terrorist tactics and threatening the nation's satellite communications network, the Florida satellite TV dealer cast every satellite dish owner in the role of a possible "crazy."

Fortunately, our friends on Capitol Hill understood that all but a few dish owners are responsible citizens who know how to use the tools of grass-roots lobbying: the letter, the telegram, and the phone call. And thanks to your support, they succeeded in focusing considerable attention on viewing rights issues in Congress this year.

The fight isn't over, however. More pressure needs to be applied to bring about a fair market for scrambled programming subscriptions and the VideoCipher II decoding technology. You can help by voting on November 4 for congressional candidates who support viewing rights. Then, look for more details on the viewing rights campaign in future issues of Satellite ORBIT. By acting responsibly, you can ensure that your viewing rights are protected. ■

Bob Fosse Fine Tuned.

"Dancing is such style that I thought it would be the one thing I could bring to movies. Even Lenny, which is not dance, is kind of choreographed."

"Somebody once said the toughest thing in writing a screenplay is the fifth word. Act #1, Scene #1, is easy. The next word is a killer."

"I never had big inspirations. It's always putting one foot in front of the other. You hear about people getting these brilliant ideas. I just say, I have to go to work."

"They jumped on Sweet Charity when I tried a lot of quick cuts, which now by MTV standards, would be very tame."

"I really get scared—I'm not talking humble or anything—I get sick every morning when I'm doing a picture. If I don't get sick, I think uh-oh, I'm getting overconfident."

"My dreams are the worst. They're all B-movies."

Filmmakers like Bob Fosse challenge the manufacturer to develop componentry able to capture their art in all its subtlety and nuance. Mitsubishi answers that challenge with products like the Designer Series 35″ television set shown here.

TO THE EDITOR

Nothing Is Free

Why is it that dish owners are having such a hard time adjusting to something so simple as scrambling?

I cannot understand where the concept started that television programming is free. This is America. Nothing is free, especially television programming. We pay for network programming by paying higher prices for items advertised and by having to watch the commercials. My time is money. No thanks; I will gladly pay Showtime for its fine, commercial-free programming.

I cannot understand all the hype about buying a descrambler. When you join a video club to rent movies, you can buy a VCR or rent one. I know of no video club that supplies a free VCR. I know of no cable company that supplies a free cable converter. Cable companies are smart: they make you rent the converter every month. The phone company started this practice years ago by renting telephones.

I own a VideoCipher II descrambler, and it's a pleasure. It works perfectly. And it's a one-time purchase. Why even concern yourself with the price? Let's concentrate on programming. If we don't learn to work with programmers and show them that dish owners are a viable market, the price for programming will always be high. In order for prices to come down there has to be competition and a market. If we can create competition for the selling of programming, we will have this scrambling problem licked.

Too many people are waiting for a white knight to appear who will stop scrambling so that they can once again receive all programming free. That will never happen. All the major players want scrambling: Hollywood, programmers, cable, and Congress.

Maybe in a year or so, dish owners will be more comfortable with the changes their viewing habits are going through and see that scrambling is not so bad after all. Me? I'm just going to sit back with my family and watch our favorite shows.

Ernest M. Leo
Niagara Falls, New York

Where Are They?

I enjoyed reading your timely article "Unscrambling Scrambling" in September ORBIT.

Would you please provide the address for Telecommunications Inc. so I can get additional information on its 3-year contract and setup fee? It appears to me to be a reasonable way to handle the VideoCipher II descrambler problem without investing in another expensive piece of equipment and the maintenance associated with the same. Keep up the good work.

Addresses, Please

I live in an area of Maryland where there are cable companies all around but cable won't be available to me in the near future. I want to subscribe to SelecTV now that it has scrambled, but the 800 number listed in ORBIT's Subscription Information Chart for SelecTV is not available in my area. Is there another number I can call? I also want to contact the Disney Channel.

R.C. Burkhouse
Mechanicsville, Maryland

Editor's Note: You can write to SelecTV at 4755 Alla Road, Marina Del Rey, California 90291, telephone (213) 827-4400. You can reach the Disney Channel at 4111 West Alameda, Burbank, California 91505, telephone (818) 840-7860.

How Do I Get HBO in Alaska?

We live in a logging camp on an island in Alaska, 70 miles from the nearest town, Juneau. We are not able to hook up to cable to use a descrambler. My husband built our dish and we were really enjoying all the movie channels until they scrambled them. How can we descramble without being hooked

Eve Killiam
Freshwater Bay, Alaska

Editor's Note: You do not have to be hooked up to cable to use a descrambler. Your local satellite dealer can sell you a VideoCipher II descrambler to connect to your satellite system at home. You can then call the programmers and arrange to subscribe to their services. They will transmit a signal to "authorize" your VideoCipher II, so it can descramble those channels.

Win Some . . .

We bought our dish system in 1984, when no major movie channels were scrambled. We do not like the idea of scrambling, and instead of a VideoCipher II, we bought a VCR.

We have been subscribers to ORBIT since the day our dish was installed, thanks to the suggestion from our dealer.

I have become a bird-hopper and enjoy what you call "wild feeds" in the daily Orbit Plus, which is new and a good addition. Every time you have changed your magazine, I have liked it. Since I am enjoying your September issue, I just had to write and say thanks. You are doing a great job keeping the home dish owner informed on all the satellite industry news and programming.

Even though the major programmers are scrambling, we will continue to use and enjoy our dish and ORBIT magazine. Thanks for the improvements to the magazine and your continued consideration for the home dish owner.

Highlights and wild feeds.

Hats off to the editors for choosing movies available in the clear in the Editor's Picks section. This helps me sort out the scrambled from the unscrambled movies. Your change in the Prime Time Highlights section also is a benefit to those of us who are not yet willing to pay for the overpriced services of the scrambled movie channels. Your efforts to make the scrambled services easier to separate (and ignore) are a step in the right direction, and any further changes you could make along those lines would be greatly appreciated.

Dale R. Seng
Charlotte, North Carolina

Editor's Note: We're glad you like our effort to help you distinguish scrambled from unscrambled programming (whether you ignore the scrambled programs is up to you). Now we've made it even easier. In Movies, Specials, and Today's Movie Picks you'll find unscrambled programs marked with a check mark (✓) and scrambled programs marked ♦. Check it out.

Taking Stock

Your excellent editorial in the August issue of ORBIT regarding the proposed scrambling of CBS leads me to make a suggestion. If each individual dish owner in the United States and elsewhere purchased one share of CBS stock it would certainly give dish owners additional leverage, especially at stockholders' meetings and when voting on various proposals. It might not cause CBS's executives to change their minds entirely, but the ultimate scenario of literally hundreds or thousands of dish owner stockholders turning up to attend the CBS annual meeting to register their protest vote would, I think, give them some food for thought.

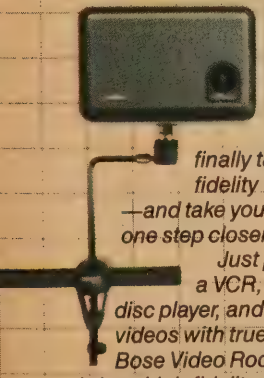
A Quick Plug for Bigger Sound.

Wide-screen sound is one of the reasons why theater viewing seems more like the real thing. There's a lot of good sound in today's video soundtracks as well, but you can't really enjoy it through the speaker built into your television set. With the new Bose® Video RoomMate® powered speakers, though, you can finally take advantage of the fidelity that's trapped in video —and take your home video system one step closer to the theater itself.

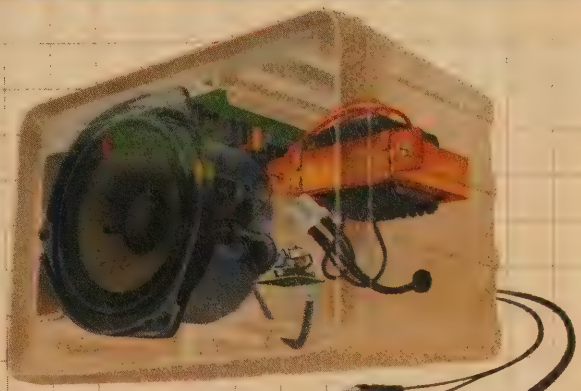


Just plug the system into a VCR, television, or video disc player, and you'll hear your videos with true high fidelity. The Bose Video RoomMate system brings high-fidelity sound to nearly any video system because it comes with its own built-in amplifier and active equalizer.

In fact, the Video RoomMate system uses a lot of the audio technology that made the Bose 901® speaker an audio legend.

Best of all, the Video RoomMate system is very easy to use. It works with virtually any video component, right out of the box. The system comes equipped with RCA plugs, magnetic shielding and a volume control. Optional mounting accessories like the mounting arm shown on the left let you easily place the Video RoomMate system almost anywhere in your system. And the price of the system means that nearly everyone can afford the price of admission.

Video Review magazine recently voted the Bose Video RoomMate® system as "one of the best video products of 1985." We think you'll agree.



Audition the Bose Video RoomMate System at your authorized Bose dealer. For more information, write Bose Corporation, Dept. SO, 10 Speen Street, Framingham, MA 01701.

and Request TV are cable pay-per-view services. At present they have no plans to offer a service to dish owners because they would have to authorize and deauthorize each decoder every two hours or so. You are probably getting occasional reception because once in a while these programs are transmitted without authorization codes, due to technical problems.

Where Are the Western Feeds?

I subscribe to your magazine to have a guide to what is being shown on the satellites, but now you are omitting the western feeds.

Your magazine is supposed to be a source of information to your readers. Is this how you inform your readers—by not publishing things just to spite the people that are scrambling? I am also against scrambling, but I bought a Video-Cipher II so I could pick up all the movies, and now you aren't listing them all.

Daurice Lucas
Phoenix, Arizona

Editor's Note: We took the western feed listings out of the Prime Time Highlights because they merely duplicate the eastern feed listings, and to make room for a greater variety of programming, not to spite anyone nor to oppose scrambling. You can still find both eastern and western feeds listed separately in the daily listings in Birdwatcher. The western feeds air exactly the same programs as the eastern feeds, and no matter where you are in the country they start three hours later. Just add three hours to the local time listed for the eastern feed airing to find out when you should tune in to the western feed. For example, a program broadcast on HBO East at 8 p.m. (MT) will air on HBO West at 11 p.m. (MT).

Cable Sellout?

United Cable in Denver sent me literature about a deal to subscribe to its scrambled service. It was the usual monopolistic pitch.

What surprised me, though, was that United was touting a subscription to ORBIT as part of the deal. Have you sold out to the cable people? You have a fine magazine, but I hope you haven't turned into a mouthpiece for the cable industry.

H.P. Lackey
Grand Junction, Colorado

Editor's Note: ORBIT remains committed to dish owners. United Cable Television Corporation is offering one of the first programming packages in the age of scrambling. We want to make sure that dish owners who elect to subscribe to this package keep abreast of all the exciting developments that lie ahead in the world of satellite TV by subscribing to ORBIT.

Who's That on TV?

In the August ORBIT, an item in Tuning In titled "Hey, Mom, I'm on TV" referred to an outfit called Media Ventures, which will make videotapes of your favorite slides, photographs, and home movies.

Can you give me the address of Media Ventures so I can write for more information about its services?

THE MICRO EYE VECTOR NEW RADAR DETECTION TECHNOLOGY

New, because the MICRO EYE VECTOR incorporates Gallium Arsenide (GaAs) Mixer Diodes for the ultimate in sensitivity and selectivity. Available now from B.E.L-TRONICS — the largest manufacturer of radar detectors.

LIGHT YEARS AHEAD

Formerly used only in sophisticated military radar receiving equipment, GaAs Mixer Diodes have far superior receiving capabilities than conventional silicon diodes. They are much "cleaner" in their performance so that signals are processed more precisely and efficiently. By designing a new circuitry around GaAs Mixer Diodes, B.E.L-TRONICS has ensured that the benefits of this advanced technology are maximized.

RELIABILITY . . . TIME AFTER TIME

Now you can relax with the MICRO EYE VECTOR's superior detection ability. Around bends, over hills and on the straightaway. City or highway. Against stationary, moving or pulsed radar, the MICRO EYE VECTOR detects both X and K Band radar with systematic audio and visual alerts warning you to the presence of police radar. Annoying nuisances of false alarms are minimized with the MICRO EYE VECTOR. When the unit sounds an alert, you know it's time to slow down.

COMPACT AND CONVENIENT

Easy to use, the MICRO EYE VECTOR can be installed on your dash or visor in a snap. Just plug it into your cigarette lighter socket and you're on your way. The MICRO EYE VECTOR's compact size and light weight make it convenient to carry in your pocket when you want to transport it from one car to another or from one city to another.

TEST DRIVE ONE TODAY

Without a doubt, this is the year of the MICRO EYE VECTOR and its sophisticated technology. B.E.L-TRONICS has elevated the science of radar detection to new heights. Let our 19 years of electronics experience protect you. Buy the best; buy BEL!

LOOKING FOR A GREEN LIGHT AND A CLEAR ROAD

What can dish owners expect from the FCC, broadcasting's traffic cop?

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is a grand-sounding government agency that was born out of the Federal Radio Commission in 1934 to be a traffic cop for pioneer broadcasters. Until then, broadcasters were given to changing frequencies and power at will, generally wreaking havoc on the radio dial.

The FCC increasingly imposed order on things, but over the years, with the surge in new technologies, broadcasting traffic has reached turnpike proportions. Whenever gridlock threatens, all eyes turn to the Commission to clear a path and, if necessary, exact an appropriate toll. Today, for example, satellite dish owners are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the FCC's current study of scrambling and program distribution, due to be released in December.

But what can dish owners expect from this noble institution? How do the Commission's actions affect television? What does this agency, supported by your tax dollars, do, anyway?

GUARDIAN OF THE AIRWAVES

As guardian of a limited public resource—the spectrum of airwaves—the FCC has two vital, if unglamorous, functions: it licenses spectrum users, making sure the frequencies are being used "in the public interest"; and it authorizes new technologies, overseeing the orderly implementation of new services. These two activities are carried out in the light of three overriding realities:

- technology leads the way, and the FCC responds;
- diversity dominates, and the Commission takes steps to ensure a diverse and healthy media;
- whatever happens, Congress gets into the act.

The phrase "in the public interest," which appears regularly throughout the Communications Act of 1934, has caused tremendous controversy because of different interpretations that often derive more from political mood than concrete definition.

Still, dish owners owe thanks to the FCC for several developments since 1965 when NASA first requested that the Commission study the feasibility of broadcasting to home receivers. A number of FCC decisions have made it possible for consumers to do just that. It was significant that when the Commission authorized domestic communications satellites in 1970, it surprised everyone by declaring an "open skies" policy—that is, the Commission said any company could apply for and put up a satellite. Previously, only AT&T and Comsat (the U.S. representative to Intelsat, an international satellite forum) were allowed to own satellites. Open skies meant more competition—

When you buy your Descrambler from Channel Master® you'll receive our $59.95 Video Control Center FREE!

This popular unit features 4 inputs and 3 outputs and allows you to hook up your satellite receiver, outdoor TV antenna and VCR to two TV sets.

With the Video Control Center at your fingertips, you can forget about messing with tangled bunches of cable, splitters and worn-out "F" connectors. Just switch between signal sources with the push of a button! Plus, it's a snap to connect. If you've installed a VCR or similar piece of equipment yourself, you can probably install the descrambler with no problem.

The Channel Master® VideoCipher® descrambler is the only unit you'll need to subscribe to your choice of satellite programming. It's the system used by SHOWTIME, THE MOVIE CHANNEL, CNN, Headline News, The Disney Channel, American Extasy, Nickelodeon, MTV, ESPN, Nashville, USA, WTBS, WGN, KTVT, HBO, CINEMAX and other programmers who offer, or plan to offer viewer subscriptions.

When you're ready to buy your descrambler, call our toll free number (800) 225-7916. Lisa and Kathy can answer any questions you may have about scrambling.

The Channel Master® descrambler has a limited one year warranty. You also get a 10-day money back guarantee if you're not satisfied.

And remember, you'll get the $59.95 Video Control Center FREE when you call our toll free number to order. Plus, your unit will be shipped within 24 hours if you use VISA or MASTERCARD.

more satellites and more diverse uses for the technology.

The next step, in 1977, authorized satellite antennas smaller than nine meters, which encouraged wider use of satellite dishes and paved the way for today's backyard and rooftop models. Then, in 1979, the Commission stopped requiring licenses for satellite dishes altogether, opening up the technology for everyone.

In conjunction with these and other efforts to engender new kinds of television service, the FCC preempted local regulation of pay and non-broadcast television. It has said cities cannot ban dishes on esthetic grounds. (This last decision is, not surprisingly, under appeal, but is unlikely to change.)

Finally, the Commission participated in the search for Captain Midnight, who brought the issue of scrambling to national attention when he interrupted an HBO transmission with his own protest message last spring. In response to a congressional request on the matter, the FCC is instituting a system of identification signals for satellite transmissions, thus making it easier to identify sources of interference.

SCRAMBLING: THE POWER TO REGULATE

Now the FCC is undertaking a massive study of scrambling and how it affects the home satellite industry and the country's 1.5 million dish owners. The Commission will also be looking into the marketing plans of the various satellite-delivered programming services. How does this fit into the Commission's role as guardian of the airwaves? The answer is more complicated than you might think.

Let's start with scrambling and whether the FCC has the power to regulate it. Remember that scrambling was written into law as part of the Cable Communications Act of 1984—the same law, incidentally, that legitimized home dish systems once and for all by making it legal to view signals that are not scrambled or marketed. And remember, too, that it was Congress that created the FCC. It seems unlikely that the Commission, which must answer to Congress and respond to its requests, would seek to reverse the congressional action that brought about scrambling in the first place.

There's another matter to consider here: programming. Historically, the FCC has kept programming at arm's length, a policy that has, over the years, won both praise and censure. In fact, the Communications Act of 1934 specifically prohibits the Commission from regulating program content on the grounds that it would be tantamount to censorship. ("No regulation or condition shall be promulgated or fixed by the Commission which shall interfere with the right of free speech by means of radio communication.")

Things get even more complicated when you consider satellite transmissions. If the programmer is not licensed by the FCC—and why should it be, since it only creates programs and does not use the airwaves?—and if the satellite being used is a common carrier, which by legal definition, has no control over what it carries, then where does the Commission fit in? The answer: It doesn't. So while there have been a number of attempts, mostly by consumer advocates and citizen's groups, to get the FCC to demand higher quality programming—better children's shows, less sex and violence, fairer portrayals of minorities, and so on—the Commission has never responded with regulations.

WHEN PROGRAMMING MATTERS

Programming matters to the FCC only at license-renewal time. If a renewal is contested, licensees may seek special consideration, citing sensitivity to local issues. And the FCC still has what it calls "ascertainment"—a process by which potential licensees decide what community issues they will address in non-entertainment broadcasts and then file their plans with the Commission. Once, ascertainment was strictly prescribed, but now it's left up to the individual licensee. Program-filing requirements have dwindled from extensive, frequent reports to quarterly reports.

Several FCC commissioners have been moved, on occasion, to try to pressure the industry into being more responsible. The most notable of these was the "vast wasteland" speech given in 1961 by then chairman Newton Minow (now a director on the board of CBS) in which he exhorted TV producers to create more redeeming programming. But it was little more than a cry in the wilderness.

Sometimes, public admonishing does have an effect. Something called "topless radio," a kind of steamy call-in show featuring bizarre sexual fantasies, was popular during the early 1970s. A little pressure from the FCC, and today it's a mere footnote in broadcasting history.

Can the Commission control the marketing of satellite-delivered programming to dish owners? Strictly speaking, marketing, like programming, is beyond the FCC's scope. Matters of antitrust import are handled by the Justice Department, and the department is conducting its own investigation into program distribution. The FCC may participate by providing information or expertise, but generally speaking, collusion and cartels are Justice Department matters. When the Justice Department will complete its investigation, and whether it will decide to take action, remains to be seen. The department is notoriously secretive about its activities. But it's no secret that the present administration is notably soft on antitrust matters.

NO MIRACLES FOR DISH OWNERS

Dish owners, therefore, should not expect miracles from the FCC's inquiry into scrambling. The Commission is not empowered to provide the kind of help dish owners are seeking. And although, strictly speaking, satellites use the airwaves and the Commission is required to uphold the public interest, the kind of actions the FCC can take on scrambling matters is limited.

So, why the study? Several reasons. First, remember the reality that Congress invariably gets involved. In this case, Congress has gotten involved by asking the FCC to conduct the study. It is not an entirely empty gesture.

"A lot of things are done because people want us to do something," says William Johnson, deputy chief of the FCC's Mass Media Bureau. "So we start a proceeding, print a 1,000-page report, talk ominously about the subject, and ask for information. There's not supposed to be an outcome. But by asking questions, we should be able to help people change their conduct because they'll be embarrassed or see the light, or be concerned about the Justice Department, or a lawsuit." The Commission's inquiry into scrambling, he said, is a continuation of the congressional investigation of the matter.

Nevertheless, critics consider this attitude part of a malaise that they say has fallen upon the Commission since the concept of deregulation took hold. Indeed, since the late 1960s, when citizens' groups were extremely active and regulation was at a peak, the FCC has gone about a systematic housecleaning of its rules and regulations. Deregulation has been even more intense under the current Commission chairman, Mark Fowler, who strongly supports the Reagan Administration's free-market philosophy.

DEREGULATION: WAVING A RED FLAG

For many people, the word "deregulation" is a red flag, provoking passionate support or condemnation, so it's hard to look objectively at what deregulation really means. In the past several years, the FCC has deregulated a number of areas. It has gotten rid of its rules requiring TV broadcasters to file copies of program logs (now there's a quarterly list); it has made license renewal a matter of simply sending a postcard. It has gotten rid of most regulations on cable television systems. It has lightened rules requiring cable systems to carry local broadcast channels, and will do away with them entirely in five years. The FCC has eased its restrictions on concentration of ownership of regional broadcast outlets, and increased the numbers of TV stations a network can own from five to 12, with a cap at 25 percent of the national audience. It cancelled an anti-trafficking measure that made broadcasters hold properties for at least three years before selling them. And in a few years the rule that keeps networks from producing and syndicating their own programs will expire.

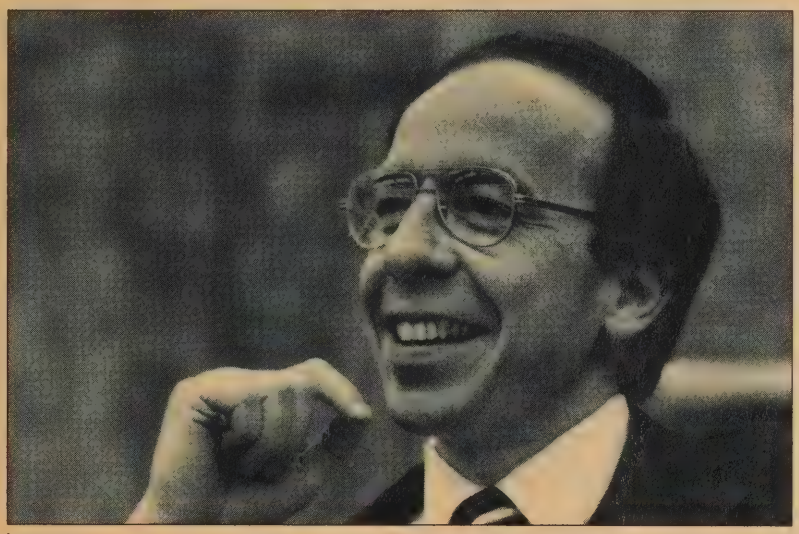
Most of these matters affect the industry more than viewers—there will still be soaps, game shows, sitcoms, and adventures, as well as a generous portion of theatrical and made-for-TV movies. And there will be basic and pay services to supplement the new television. The structure of the industry, and the manner in which companies make the most profit, may change in the future, but it's hard to predict exactly what will happen.

Some say that deregulation is a direct result of the increasing number of outlets—9,871 radio stations, 1,220 television stations, 7,471 cable systems, and 1.5 million home satellite dishes—which has brought about the kind of diversity that the FCC regulations tried to engender. Others say that the sheer numbers make it impossible to keep track of program logs and the fine details of broadcast operations.

Where does all this leave dish owners? Clearly, it leaves them without a grand protector in the form of the FCC. The Commission is not, in these days of a marketplace philosophy, an agency that will take drastic, intrusive measures to help a fledgling industry. That is not to say the Commission will not take steps to help things along. It already has—by opening the skies, deregulating dish licensing, and preempting local regulations that would stifle the growth of backyard satellite dishes. At the very least, its inquiry will arm the industry with solid facts and information on scrambling and marketing.

FCC spokesman Johnson says Commissioners are reluctant to do anything because "it's beyond our mandate. But they want the industry to be more sensitive. Mostly, the Commission will not set standards or regulate rates. But the information—if it's bad—will help people in court." ■



FCC chairman Mark Fowler strongly supports deregulation.

SATCHMO SIZZLES

Bravo's three-part series History of Jazz heats up this month when modern jazz and classical trumpet virtuoso Wynton Marsalis hosts part two: Trumpet Kings. Premiering November 11 (F4, 2), Trumpet Kings looks at the finest horn blowers in the business, past and present, and includes rare footage of Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong and Dizzy Gillespie in their only appearance together.

THE SCARECROW HEADS WEST

Bruce Boxleitner takes a break from his regular role on CBS's Scarecrow and Mrs. King this month to ride Down the Long Hills on the Disney Channel (G1, 4, 24). Boxleitner stars as a pioneer father searching for his son (Tom Brown) and a young girl (Lisa Macfarlane) who are the only survivors of a wagon train massacre. Based on a story by famous Western writer Louis L'Amour, Down the Long Hills premieres November 15 at 7 p.m.

Hot wheel history

"Of all the movies in all the world, you had to colorize mine."

COLOR THEM PURPLE

Movie directors are fuming over Ted Turner's plans to colorize classic black-and-white movies for showing on WTBS (G1, 18). Michael Curtiz' Yankee Doodle Dandy has already aired. This month sees color treatments of John Huston's The Maltese Falcon and Curtiz' The Sea Hawk. Also on Terrible Ted's rainbow list of more than 100 films: Casablanca, King's Row, Fort Apache, Treasure of the Sierra Madre, The Hill, The Philadelphia Story, High Sierra, and Sergeant York.

Turner gained rights to the extensive libraries of MGM, RKO, and early Warner Bros. through his recent Hollywood wheeling and dealing. The Directors Guild of America is aghast at the notion that classic black-and-white films should emerge with a candy coating for TV. The British Guild of Directors has joined the fight. Film directors everywhere are really steamed. "Those fools!" exclaimed Billy Wilder (Sunset Boulevard; The Apartment) to the Los Angeles Times. "Do they really think that colorization will make The Informer any better? Or Citizen Kane or Casablanca? Or do they hope to palm off some of the old stinkers by dipping them in 31 flavors? Is there no end to their greed?"

Joe Dante (Gremlins) chimed in: "Black-and-white was an art form in the '40s. By changing them, they are tampering with history. It's the death knell of an entire art form." Woody Allen, who sometimes elects to make his movies without color, told the Times: "What they are really saying is that the public are morons, brainless people who can't enjoy a film if it's in black-and-white. They need the colors because they don't have the brains to respond to the content. It is not true."

Turner, who was known as "Captain Outrageous" in his sailing days, does not intend to turn back. Said TBS executive vice-president Bob Wussler to the Times: "We certainly care about the directors' feelings, but we are not going to change our plans. That boat has left the harbor. The ship has sailed." That may be, but it hasn't rounded the horn of viewer approval yet. If movie buffs agree that black and white are colors enough for classics that were made that way, it could turn into The Ship That Died of Shame.

ALL EYES ON DONNA MILLS

Knots Landing star Donna Mills is known for her expressive eyes and adventurous eye makeup. She is sharing her mascara secrets on a new 55-minute video, The Eyes Have It. Mills put up $100,000 of her own money to produce the video, which was shot at her home. The twist is that she is marketing The Eyes Have It not only through video outlets but via cosmetics counters in department stores. This development, Mills told The Hollywood Reporter, is "totally new and very, very difficult to do. I have learned more about merchandising, marketing, and department stores than I ever wanted to know." She also discovered that departments in department stores can get very protective about their turf: "To put a video in the cosmetic department gets very sticky because the video manager wants to have it in the video department, and a lot of stores don't want video because they look at it as a rental situation." Distributed by MCA Home Video, Mills' eye-opener retails for $19.95.

David Letterman's favorite comic, Jay Leno, is wheeling his motorcycle to Philadelphia for his first NBC special, set to air at 11.30 p.m. (ET) on Nov. 1 (F1, 8; K2, 1, 5). Late Night Dave will be a guest on the show along with Wheel of Fortune letter-spinner Vanna White. Leno also plans a treat for VCR owners. To discover whodunit in VCR Mystery Theater, you must tape the segment, rewind the tape, and freeze the frame when the gun goes off. For those viewers who don't own a VCR, Leno will reveal the famous killer in an anagram as the show ends.

alone in the shooting of the President? Was he guilty at all? More than 20 years after his death, Oswald goes on trial with real lawyers, judge, and jury. On Trial: Lee Harvey Oswald airs in two parts on November 21 and 22 (G1, 5; F3, 10). Eyewitnesses of the shooting will testify as well as experts in ballistics, forensics, and anatomy. Noted trial attorneys Vincent Bugliosi and Gerry Spence will present their cases to a real judge and jury, and the verdict will not be announced until the final minutes of the telecast—even the jurors will be awaiting the opening of their sealed ballots.

Also on Showtime, Gregory Harrison, Rue McClanahan, Dick Van Patten, and Michael Learned star in a new production of Picnic, the Pulitzer Prize-winning play by William Inge, who also wrote Bus Stop, Come Back Little Sheba, and the Oscar-winning film Splendor in the Grass. Picnic tells how a young man (Harrison) drifts into a small Kansas town and disrupts the lives of the women he encounters there (G1, 5; F3, 10).

Is anybody out there? Inquiring minds want to know, including NASA scientists and individuals such as Steven Spielberg, Carl Sagan, Lily Tomlin, and astronomer Frank Drake. NOVA this month takes a look at the search for extraterrestrial life in a program that leads viewers from fictional Hollywood aliens to serious investigations by some very serious folk. These include NASA's Deep Space Network Tracking Station in California's Mojave Desert and META, the Mega-channel Extra-Terrestrial Assay, a privately funded Harvard-Smithsonian project. Spielberg, a major financial contributor to META, explains, "I've benefited so much from science fiction, I just thought it was time to get involved in science reality." But what signals could we expect to receive from alien life forms? What frequencies should we search? And how would we recognize attempts at communication from beings utterly unlike ourselves, should they exist? Is Anybody Out There?—NOVA will try to find out on PBS (W4, 15, 17, 21, 23), Tuesday, November 18, at 8 p.m. (ET).

THE SAGA OF Captain MIDNIGHT

HOW HBO JAMMER JOHN R. MACDOUGALL WON A BATTLE BUT LOST THE WAR.

It started out as just another Saturday. April 26, 1986. John R. MacDougall, 25, spent the day alone at his satellite TV dealership in Ocala, Florida, waiting for customers who never came. "It was," he says, "a normal day in the doldrums of the satellite TV industry." But that night, MacDougall, 5-feet-11, 225 pounds, and prone to nervously running his fingers through his reddish blond hair and adjusting his glasses, would transform into Captain Midnight and set the world of satellite television spinning.

Business had been flat since January 15, when Home Box Office became the first pay-TV service to scramble its signal full time. Other services were following HBO's lead. Dish owners were balking at the cost of descramblers and program fees. Potential customers were confused and stayed away in droves. The 1985 boom in dish sales had simply petered out, and MacDougall Electronics, in business for just two-and-a-half years, had seen its early profits disappear.

AMERICAN DREAM

MacDougall had stopped advertising and turned off his air-conditioner to save money. With no customers, he idled away the day watching TV and reading magazines. Later, he would say, "I have been watching the great American dream slip from my grasp."

To make ends meet, MacDougall spent his evenings moonlighting as a part-time operations engineer at Central Florida Teleport, a local company that uplinks services to satellites. He was a natural electronics engineer. A good student, he had spent his spare time during his teenage years tinkering with CB radios and automobiles. With some pals, he rebuilt a 1923 Ford roadster that he still owns. He had dropped out of a management engineering course at Worcester Polytechnical Institute in Massachusetts after two years, but his first job was installing satellite TV dishes. "My father used to tell me I would need to get a job where I would be able to make money by watching TV, just because I liked TV so much," he says.

At Central Florida Teleport, he could do just that. At 4 p.m. on that Saturday, MacDougall shut up shop. He stopped at his home, where he lived alone, picked up a sandwich for supper, and then reported to the teleport. After two hours, a second engineer went off duty and MacDougall was alone in the small building that is flanked on one side by five large satellite dishes.

As the end of his shift drew near, MacDougall was absently watching Pee-Wee's Big Adventure, a movie he was uplinking for the now-defunct pay-per-view service, People's Choice. But something else was on his mind. When the film ended, MacDougall went through the normal routine. Before logging off, he set up color bars and punched buttons to swing the giant 30-foot dish he'd been using to its resting place. That was necessary because the soil beneath the dish's cement pad is sandy clay. Rainfall could throw it off-kilter, but by setting it in a certain way the rain runs harmlessly into a gutter. At its resting place, the dish points directly at the satellite Galaxy 1. Transponder 23 on that satellite carries the eastern feed of HBO.

"That's when I decided to do it," says MacDougall. "It wasn't like I thought about it, 'Yes. No. Yes. No.' It was just, 'Yeah!' " He scrolled up a character generator, an electronic keyboard that puts letters across the TV screen, and tried to think what to write. "I didn't know exactly how to start it," he says. "I wrote 'Goodevening.' I wanted to be polite. I didn't want it to be vulgar or call them names or anything. That's not my style."

He spent a couple of minutes composing his message. The idea of using the name Captain Midnight, he says, "just popped into my mind." He had recently seen a movie with that title about a teenager who had a pirate radio station in his van. Now, HBO was airing the Sean Penn and Timothy Hutton espionage movie, The Falcon and the Snowman. It was at 12:32 a.m. Sunday, April 27, that John R. MacDougall pushed the transmit button on his console and turned into Captain Midnight. "That's when I hit it," he says. "It was almost like an out-of-body experience. It was like I was there but I wasn't really there."

For 4½ minutes, HBO viewers in the eastern United States saw this message:

GOODEVENING HBO
FROM CAPTAIN MIDNIGHT
$12.95/MONTH?
NO WAY!
(SHOWTIME/MOVIE CHANNEL BEWARE)

A week earlier, MacDougall had successfully overridden HBO's powerful signal momentarily with just a test pattern. (He now publicly denies this, but he admitted it to a United States attorney.) The network had quickly brushed that signal aside, attributing it to not uncommon accidental interference. This time, the engineer on duty at HBO's Long Island, New York, uplink station simply stepped up the signal's power. HBO was transmitting at 125 watts. When Captain Midnight applied more power, the HBO engineer revved up to match it. "He saw the interference and saw that he was losing a grip on things," says George Dillon, an engineer who investigated the episode for the enforcement and investigative division of the Federal Communications Commission. "This little game took 60 to 90 seconds. You had these two people at their respective stations fighting for control."

As Captain Midnight's signal surged, HBO placed a frantic call to Hughes Communications Inc., which owns Galaxy 1, asking: "Is there something wrong with the bird?" Says Dillon, "HBO thought it might cause damage to the satellite, so they gave it up."

THE FAILING BUSINESS

'It was a normal day in the doldrums of satellite TV.'

NEVER LOST CONTROL

In Ocala, Captain Midnight was stunned. "I could see my signal on top of HBO's as soon as I hit the transmit button," says MacDougall. "I stared at the monitor for a while, and then I didn't know if it was two minutes or 10 minutes." Caught up with engineering curiosity, he monitored power levels and downlink signals. "At no time," he says, "did I lose control over the transponder." But then, as suddenly as he had struck, he quit. "When I shut it off, I really didn't know how long I had been on top of HBO, but that's when I started to feel very guilty," he says. "I thought, 'Ohmigod, what did I do?' That thought raced through my mind for the next 10 or 15 minutes as I reconfigured the teleport back to normal. The guilt really set in that night. I didn't sleep very well."

On Sunday morning he woke up to the same nagging doubts. "I thought maybe I should turn myself in. But then I thought, 'Well, let's be rational. Nobody's going to see it. Nobody cares. HBO will know. They'll get the message. They'll understand their vulnerability. They'll reconsider their arbitrary and unfair pricing, and maybe I'll read about it in a few months in Satellite ORBIT. That's basically how I rationalized, not panicking, and went on with my daily routine that Sunday."

Then he saw that Captain Midnight's HBO ambush was making TV's network newscasts, and he began to panic. "I was devastated and so nervous with frustration. I had to work that night at the teleport. Another man was going to be there for the first two hours. When he got there I had to pretend and say things like, 'Did you see this guy Captain Midnight? Geez, do you realize what in the world he could have done?' That was difficult."

Normally, MacDougall's natural curiosity would have made him the first to want to discuss how it was done. But as the event made national headlines and became fodder for jokes by David Letterman and Johnny Carson, he went the other way, trying to play it down. The tension grew as HBO clamored for his head, and the FCC and even Congress got involved.

On April 28, HBO chairman Michael J. Fuchs wrote to the FCC saying that the company had received calls threatening to move Galaxy 1 into a new orbit. He urged the Commission to "use all its investigative resources" to capture Captain Midnight.

"This wasn't just a jamming, but a jamming and replacement. And a fascinating one at that," says HBO spokesman Alan Levy. "That's why you saw a lot of action on this case. We understand that the dish owners are at odds with the programmers, but when you escalate it to this point, it gets a little wild and woolly. And when you're breaking the satellite system of the United States, it's very serious."

FCC investigator Dillon says the implications of the incident involved a threat to the national security. "There's lots of highly sensitive data involved. If you have a bandit, it could disrupt the business of the United States—things like defense communications, medical information, telephone communications, and teleconferences.

Edgar Eagan, owner of Central Florida Teleport, took the incident very seriously. "He logged out and signed the log and decided to stay and play," says Eagan, founder and past president of ESPN, the sports network. "In reality he was using the equipment for an unauthorized and illegal purpose."

RUMORS GALORE

As the investigation proceeded, rumors abounded. Satellite TV publications and television commentators received calls and tapes from people claiming to be Captain Midnight. The FBI was said to be on the case, and the hunt was rumored to focus on Dallas, Texas.

In Ocala, MacDougall had decided to "play it dumb." Discreetly, he talked to colleagues in the satellite TV business to find out how the investigation was going. But gradually he could not resist discussing the incident with other engineers and operators who talked about what happens when two signals meet on a single transponder. He was outraged when they dismissed his observations.

"I don't like to say this, but even the more skilled personnel were of the assumption that you would never get a clear signal with two signals feeding on the same channel," MacDougall says. "I brought out the fact that if one was much stronger than the other, it would override it. At that point they told me I was wrong, and that I didn't know what I was talking about.

"All of my life people have never taken my word for things because I've always seemed to be a little younger than they are, and maybe a little less experienced, but I've always come up with the right answer. They didn't seem to believe my theory. Well, I guess they ought to believe it now, because I was right."

THE TIP-OFF

It was a phone call made by a disgruntled dish owner from Ocala that concentrated the Federal Communications Commission's investigation on the Central Florida Teleport. Someone claiming to be Captain Midnight was overheard by a tourist from Wisconsin at a phone booth just off Interstate 75 in Gainesville, Florida. The tourist reported the conversation and the man's license plate number to the FCC.

MacDougall says the impostor was a customer of his, but he doesn't know his last name. Again, he was outraged. "He was very militant about scrambling and the cable programmers," he says. "I know who he is and he has done me a lot of harm. My attorney and I feel that had it not been for [his causing] the concentration of the investigation here in Ocala, they would not have investigated in depth and probably I never would have been charged. If he had kept his big mouth shut, minded his own business, and not tried to make out like some kind of hero, I would still be panicking and wondering whether they were going to come and get me."

THE SCENE OF THE CRIME

'It was like an out-of-body experience, I was there, but I wasn't really there.'

Central Florida Teleport, Ocala, Florida

MacDougall's voice rises as he exclaims, "I still can't believe this guy actually told people he was Captain Midnight and bragged about it!" Prior to the HBO ambush, MacDougall says the only time he broke the law was driving over the 55 mph speed limit. "I never even bought beer under age. I was a model citizen," he says earnestly.

FCC MOVES IN

In July, FCC investigators talked to MacDougall, asking questions that led him to believe they knew what had happened He told them he hadn't done it, and that he had no knowledge of the incident, but then he really began to worry. "I was very concerned about it, but I didn't let on," he says. "I'm able to hide my feelings very well. I can just about convince people I'm a total raving maniac at the same time."

Two weeks later, the FCC returned. This time, they brought along U.S. Attorney Lawrence Gentile III, who served MacDougall with a subpoena to appear in U.S. District Court in Jacksonville. According to MacDougall, their conversation went like this:

"What's this for?" MacDougall asked when Gentile held out the subpoena.

"Captain Midnight," answered Gentile. "Aren't you aware that you're a suspect in this incident?"

"You're trying to tell me that just because I'm a satellite dish dealer and I happened to work for a teleport, I'm a suspect?" responded MacDougall.

"There are other things," replied Gentile.

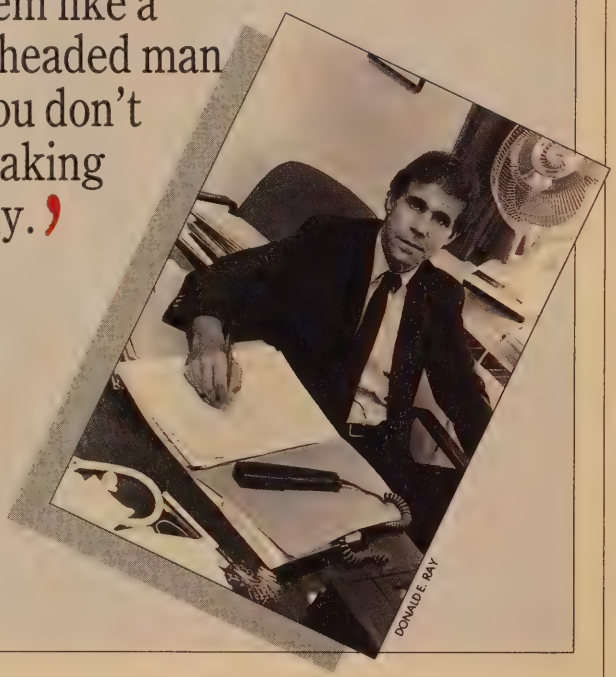
"Well, what are they?" asked MacDougall.

"We can't discuss it here," said Gentile. "We can talk about it in front of the grand jury. You need to think very carefully about this. You seem like a level-headed man, but you don't seem to be taking this seriously. This is a serious time. You might want to consult with an attorney."

"Attorney for what?" questioned MacDougall. "I haven't done anything. An innocent man does not need an attorney. The only people who hire attorneys are guilty people."

THE INVESTIGATOR

'You seem like a level-headed man but you don't seem to be taking this seriously.'



U.S. Attorney Lawrence Gentile III

According to MacDougall, Gentile then attempted to reach an agreement with him. "If you would be willing to talk to us about this and tell us what you know about this incident right now," said Gentile, "I'd be willing to recommend probation to the judge and a small fine. Probation and a fine are not bad considering what you're facing. Let's face it, Mr. MacDougall, this is not the crime of the century. However, we have been getting a lot of pressure on this."

MacDougall said at that point he began to think there was not enough evidence to convict him; otherwise he wouldn't have been offered a plea bargain. Still claiming innocence, MacDougall told Gentile he would see him in Jacksonville.

MacDougall's first brief jamming raid on HBO led investigators to strongly suspect him. The investigation had been narrowed down to uplink stations with the capacity to pull off both raids, and then to those manned by the same person at the time of each incident. "We had a very good idea he was our man," says Gentile. "Of all the people I talked with, he was the only one I gave target warnings to [the equivalent of the Miranda warnings police give when they make an arrest]." He says he leaned on MacDougall "pretty hard."

MEET CAPTAIN MIDNIGHT

Taking Gentile's advice, MacDougall contacted an Ocala attorney, John Green Jr. When they first met, MacDougall recalls, "He said, 'Well, John, tell me about Captain Midnight.' And I reached out my hand and said, 'Well, here, that's me.' "

Green advised him that he had a 70-percent chance of winning the case. If convicted, he faced a $100,000 fine and/or one year in jail. But MacDougall decided to enter a plea of guilty. "There were two reasons," he said. "I could release my guilt, plead guilty, and get it over with, do the right thing. That kept panging at me: do the right thing. But the other side, the activist, kept saying, 'Stand up for your rights.' My idealism and my activism were combating my conservative upbringing and my conservative political leanings. They were battling back and forth, and I was at my wits' end. I didn't know what to do."

MacDougall also worried about going before the grand jury and trying to lie his way out of the charge. "I would not have wanted to take a misdemeanor and make it a felony by committing perjury," he says. In the end, the determining factor was money. Green advised his client that going to trial could take 6 to 12 months and cost $30,000 to $40,000. "During that time," MacDougall says, "I couldn't have said anything, and I would have been bombarded by the press. It would have been a nightmare."

Fighting and then losing the case was always a possibility, and MacDougall conjured up nightmares of what that might entail. "This was a federal penitentiary they could have sent me to," he said. "The concept just didn't register, to be sitting eating lunch with the other convicts in striped uniforms, and a guy says, 'Hey, what are you in for?" And I say, 'Oh, I operated a transmitter without a license.' I couldn't take the risk."

FUN EDUCATION

By the time he went to federal court on July 22 and went through the arrest procedure, which included being photographed and fingerprinted, MacDougall's curiosity was back in full force. "If I hadn't been directly involved, it probably would have been a fun educational experience," he says. "You can't just plead guilty to a crime. It's hours and hours of discussion, and you have to prove to the prosecutor, and also the judge, that you are guilty. Then, you have to prove you weren't coerced into making the statement, and that you have knowledge of your rights."

MacDougall says officials at both the July 22 hearing and the sentencing, on August 26, were surprisingly cordial. He speaks of smiles, handshakes from marshals, and understanding from U.S. Magistrate Howard T. Snyder, who fined him $5,000 and placed him on one year's probation. "I'm glad to see that the legal system does work," he says.

Meanwhile, although convicted in court, MacDougall had become a hero to many dish owners and satellite TV dealers. A group calling itself the Captain Midnight Grassroots Coalition had formed and was selling bumper stickers, T-shirts, visors, and sweat bands to raise money for MacDougall's legal costs. Said Donald Cochran, spokesman for the coalition: "While there are those who consider Captain Midnight a criminal for his unauthorized transmissions, there is another group made up of home satellite dish owners, small business people, and rebels, who support his actions as a non-violent and non-destructive protest in the best American tradition."

THE RIGHT REASONS

MacDougall says he has had no direct involvement with the coalition, but he adds, "I would like to see my own industry support me in this. Even though I may have done more harm than good, as some people think, I did it for the right reasons."

Central Florida Teleport owner Eagan, on the other hand, says that local opinion in Ocala and surrounding Marion County has gotten "silly." When the coalition presented MacDougall with its first donation, a check for $500, in September, a crowd gathered outside his office, and drivers of passing cars and pickup trucks honked their horns. Says Eagan, "There's a group of people here who think that John MacDougall is a wonderful man and a great hero who has done wonderful things for them. But to me, that has not been placed in the perspective of the world view or even the regional view. Ninety-nine and nine tenths [percent] of the people don't agree."

Eagan says the only positive thing to come out of the incident was that MacDougall was in the home dish business and so there was at least a reason for him to have done it. "If it had been some crackpot who did it just for the hell of it, or an employee being vindictive, then the corporate community would have been more upset. This way they can say, 'We're not the target, HBO was.' "

Still, the FCC is stepping up security. It has moved to require that by the end of 1987 every radio and television transmitter must use an electronic name tag whenever it is on the air. Each satellite uplink station would leave a unique, unchangeable electronic signature whenever it was used. Also, a bill is being drafted in Congress that would raise the penalty for satellite interference to a $250,000 fine and/or 10 years in jail.

SCRAMBLING A REALITY

HBO's Levy says that now that scrambling is a reality, he believes consumers are dropping their emotional resistance to it. "We were the first ones to scramble," he says. "We got the arrows in the back and we were the ones to get jammed. We're over the first hurdle. HBO wants its products in every home in America. We are attempting to increase our business through home dish owners. We're calling for the marketplace to set the price. It wouldn't make sense for HBO to stifle its growth."

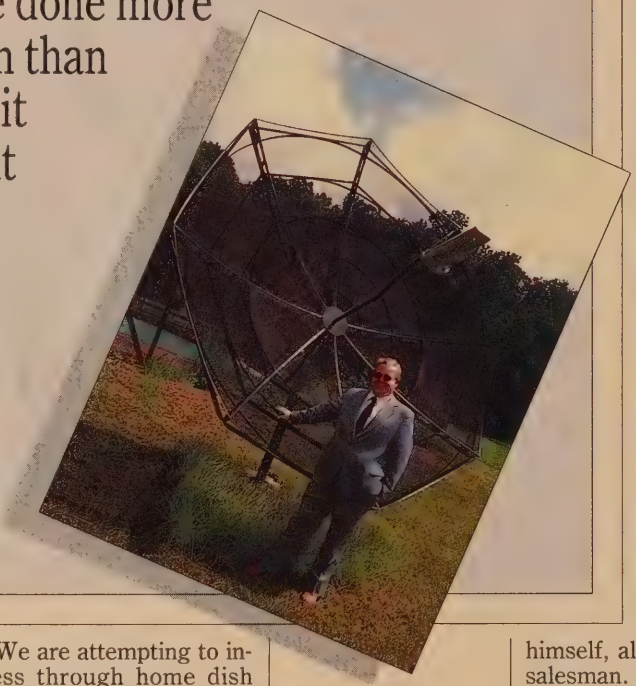
MacDougall says he never contested the right of HBO and other programmers to make a profit from their programs, nor did he object to their right to protect those profits by scrambling signals. "My real concern is that the free and competitive marketplace be allowed to operate for the benefit of the American people," he says. Now, he believes that the last line of Captain Midnight's message [Showtime/Movie Channel Beware!] was misunderstood and got him into a lot of trouble. "It was a bad choice of words on my part," he says. "I was just trying to tell them: 'Look before you leap. Don't follow HBO as the leader.' "

It was, he says, the act of a frustrated individual who was trying to get his point across to people who didn't seem to listen. He hopes no one will try to imitate what he did: "The message is now out; there's no reason to do it again."

MacDougall was born in Elmhurst, Illinois, just outside Chicago. His mother, Thelma, is a homemaker, and his father, Robert, was a successful building contractor, who retired when MacDougall was 9. The youngest of three brothers and one sister, MacDougall moved to Florida with his family shortly after his father's retirement at the age of 47. MacDougall speaks often of his father. Although his entire family supported him after the HBO incident, he says, "My father is of the old school, a very staunch conservative: the law is the law, and it should never be broken."

THE LOCAL HERO

'Even though I may have done more harm than good, I did it for the right reasons.'



MacDougall plans to stay in the satellite TV business.

WAS IT WORTH IT?

MacDougall says he doesn't know now if playing Captain Midnight was worth it all: "I might be able to better answer that in a couple of months." He intends to write a book about the incident and plans to continue holding on with his satellite TV business in Ocala. He says that like many small businessmen, he didn't start off with enough money, although he did turn a profit in his first year. "I'm losing money now and a good businessman doesn't lose money," he admits. "I didn't buy expensive food. I bought cheap gas for my car. I cut everything I could and I'm still losing. Now, I can barely plan a month ahead because of the volatile changes in the business. You never know what's going to happen the next day."

MacDougall believes in himself, although he says he's not a great salesman. He lost his job at the Central Florida Teleport before he was revealed as Captain Midnight, because People's Choice went off the air. But all the publicity has resulted in more repair business from dish owners, and he says manufacturers return his calls quicker now. "There's a certain pride that goes into my systems," he says. "I sell a part of myself with each system."

For all his public declarations of regret, there is also an undeniable pride in having pulled off the notorious HBO raid. "Did I know it would work?" asks Captain Midnight. "Definitely!" ■

Radio Shack Has the Satellite Accessories You Need...

At Prices You'll Appreciate

(1) Operate a remote-control satellite receiver, VCR or cable box from any room in your home

Radio Shack's Remote Control Extender relays the commands from any infrared remote control. Here's an example: Your remote control VCR or other video source is in the living room and it's connected to a TV in the bedroom. With the Extender, you don't have to go from bedroom to living room to change channels or select VCR modes! Really saves steps and it's only 49.95

(2) Now you can enjoy all the available channels on your multiple-receiver satellite system

When used with "dual-feed" block downconversion systems, our Automatic Dual LNB Switch lets each receiver select from all the channels on each satellite—horizontally and vertically polarized. Satellite selection remains at the main receiver. It's also suitable for C/Ku-band switching. Like all of our video accessories, it includes complete instructions. Only 49.95

(3) Protect your satellite dish with an alarm that connects indoors at the receiver

Our easy-to-install SAFE HOUSE® Satellite Alarm sounds off immediately if the cable to your dish is cut or disconnected. It works alone or with a home alarm system and has battery backup in case of AC failure. Only 29.95

(4) Watch your VCR on every TV in your home—without moving it from room to room

The Multiple Video Distribution System sends four video sources to all your TVs at once—watch a disc, tape, satellite or regular TV on any set, anytime. Only 49.95

(5) Boost satellite and UHF-TV signals to compensate for long cable runs and splitters

Our 20 dB UHF Inline Amplifier covers 430 to 1430 MHz. It's ideal for block downconversion systems. "Bullet" design makes installation easy. UL listed. Only 29.95

INDIANA'S MR. BASKETBALL

IT'S NOW OR NEVER FOR HUSTLING STEVE ALFORD AS THE HOOSIERS SHOOT BACK AFTER THREE LEAN YEARS.

Sam and Sharon Alford sent Christmas cards to family and friends in 1965 introducing their one-year-old son, Steve. Inscribed on the cards was a proud boast: One day, Steve Alford would be player of the year on his home state's high school courts. He would be Indiana's Mr. Basketball.

Alford made good on that boast in 1983, winning the award hands down. But not even doting parents could have predicted all that the hustling Indiana shooting star would become: a consensus Indiana University All-American; an Olympic gold medalist; a sure bet to become the Hoosiers' all-time scoring leader; an odds-on favorite this season to lead Indiana to its first NCAA national championship in four years; and a certain first-round pick in the next NBA draft.

BOOED OFF THE COURT

The Alfords always believed in their son, but for a long time they were the only ones who did. As a boy, Steve was short and puny. In his first high school game, the broomstick-thin 130-pounder with a basketball tucked under one lank arm was booed off the court. Alford bawled like a baby in the tunnel afterwards, but that unsettling experience only served to make him more determined than ever. Through weight-lifting and daily practice—mostly on his own and often until midnight in basketball's off season—Alford built himself into what he is today: the best pure shooter in the college game.

Consider the record:

- Alford has scored 1,689 points in his Indiana career, putting him well within reach of the records set by retired Hoosier greats Kent Benson (1,740), Mike Woodson (2,061), and Don Schlundt (2,192).
- Alford's .901 career free-throw average is already the Hoosiers' all-time mark. In his freshman year, he led the nation with 91.3 percent in free-throw accuracy.
- Last year, Alford averaged 22.5 points per game, raising his career average to 18.6.

Short on the court at 6-foot-2, and slight in a fight at 185 pounds, Alford, at 22, is cursed with below-par leaping ability. But he is a classic overachiever who succeeds thanks to his relentless drive, basketball savvy, and a superabundance of willpower.

"I believe in mind over matter," says Alford. "Beating my opponent with my mind is something I've always lived with. And maybe I play a little harder with my heart than the next guy."

TIME AND EFFORT

Relaxing at his parents' newly remodeled home in New Castle, Indiana, Alford goes on, "I don't know if you could find another kid who has spent as much time and effort practicing the way I've done. I've been really demanding of myself. I don't think you can go to many small towns and find that kind of commitment in kids. There are too many things that they'd rather be doing. I've sacrificed doing a lot of things with my buddies because I wanted to get my daily workout.

DAVID REPP

You can find a lot of kids playing basketball, but you don't find a lot of kids who really work and study the game of basketball like I did when I was young."

Teammate Ricky Calloway, billed as Indiana's superstar of the future after averaging 13.9 points as a freshman last season, agrees. "Steve has to go through a lot on the court to get his points because he's not as quick or as big as everyone else," says Calloway. "But when he has the opportunity, as everyone knows, he doesn't miss too often."

Alford's parents fueled Steve's sports drive with more than a proud Christmas boast 20 years ago. Theirs is a fanatical basketball family. Steve's father, Sam Alford, was a Little All-American for Indiana's Franklin College, leading the nation's small colleges in free-throw shooting with a .912 percentage. Later, Sam coached at several Indiana high schools—since 1975 at New Castle Chrysler—logging an impressive 301-144 won-lost record to date.

"Steve sat on the bench with me when he was three years old," says Sam, a youthful-looking man of 44 whose own obsession with basketball has never wavered: he's shooting now for a college coaching job. From the time Steve was a toddler until he left high school, he only missed two games with his father. Once, he had chickenpox, and once his mother took him to a free-throw shooting contest. On game days, the boy would have his coat on at three o'clock, ready to go. "He learned how to add and subtract at basketball games," says Sam. "I'd give him a clipboard and a piece of paper. Every time someone would score, numbers would change on the scoreboard. Steve would cross out the old numbers and write in new ones on the clipboard."

DAVID BEPP

Alford and Knight, learning to live with pressure

The boy took his dreams home. "He used to go into his room, shut the door, and shoot blocks at wastebaskets," says Sharon Alford. "We'd stand outside his door and listen to him say the play-by-play of his games. I wish now I had them on tape."

SHATTERED EGO

Steve's idol was his father's first burgeoning star: Jerry Sichting, now the Boston Celtics' sixth man, who was coached by Sam at Martinsville High School in the early '70s. But the dream of emulating his hero took a bad bounce in that ego-shattering freshman year at New Castle. However, sheer determination took him to a senior year in which he averaged 39.1 points per

ORBIT'S NCAA TOP TEN

Satellite ORBIT's fearless forecast for this season:

1. INDIANA

The NCAA's new three-point rule (for shots beyond the 19-feet-9 line) is going to give hawk-eyed Steve Alford some 30- and maybe even 40-point games. Add hotshot Keith Smart to take on playmaking responsibilities; 6-foot-10 center Dean Garrett; and 6-foot-6 forwards Rick Calloway and Dave Minor; and this year the conference can be called Indiana and the Nine Nobodies.

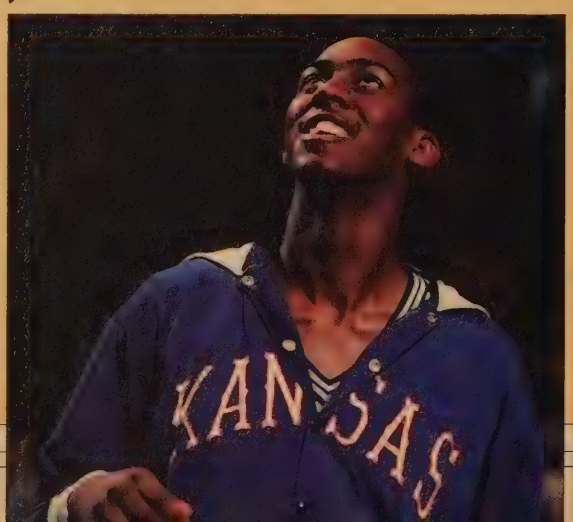
2. NORTH CAROLINA

In the Top Ten of all polls for six consecutive years, coach Dean Smith's Tarheels are once again going to make a run for the national championship. Gone are stars Steve Hale, Warren Martin, and No. 1 NBA draft pick Brad Daugherty, leaving returning lettermen 6-foot-3 Kenny Smith and 6-foot-10 Joe Wolf to prove they can handle rebounding.

3. KANSAS

Big question: Has 6-foot-11 junior Danny Manning recovered from injuries suffered during the World Basketball Championships last summer? If Manning is healthy, the Jayhawks could knock off Oklahoma for their second successive Big Eight title and make another Final Four appearance. Without him, they will still be a fearsome team but a conference also-ran.

Danny Manning: is he fit?



4. KENTUCKY

Coach of the Year Eddie Sutton took his team to a 32-4 Southeastern Conference win and a No. 3 national ranking last season. Stars Kenny Walker, Roger Harden, and Leroy Byrd are gone, but the Wildcats still have hot shooters Winston Bennett, Ed Davender, and James Blackmon. The team's top newcomer is guard Rex Chapman, Kentucky's Mr. Basketball last year.

Coach of the year Eddie Sutton (center)

5. WASHINGTON

Underrated 7-foot Chris Welp, the Pac-10 and District 8 Player of the Year, will get a lot of game, was named Mr. Basketball, and won a scholarship offer from Indiana University coach Bob Knight.

Alford went from a 1-point game average as a freshman to an 18-point game average as a sophomore. "That first year really woke him up and made him realize that he had to get busy and work hard if he was going to convince people he could play in our conference," says Sam. "I saw a switch turn in his head after he was booed that time. I was booed, too, when I put him in as a freshman, but I was booed when I took him out of a game as a senior."

Playing ball in New Castle, which has the world's largest high school basketball arena (seating 9,325), prepared Alford for the Hoosier hysteria that welcomed him at Indiana University. Seldom has a player had a freshman year to equal his 1983-84 season. He set Indiana records for shooting field goals (59.2 percent) and free throws (91.3 percent), led the Hoosiers in scoring with 15.5 points a game, and was named the team's Most Valuable Player—the first freshman to be so honored.

Alford also won a place on the 1984 U.S. Olympic basketball team. He proved his worth, helping the squad win the gold medal by averaging 10.3 points per game and ranking second on the team in assists. "You could see that it was really awesome for him," his mother recalls. "He was just in awe of all those players." It rattled him when the U.S. squad began playing pre-Olympic exhibition trials against NBA teams. "Steve wasn't really aggressive at first. You could see that he was hanging back on the floor. But once he got enough matches under his belt and attention from NBA scouts. Coach Andy Russo's first year at Washington resulted in a 19-12 season. This year, with Welp and guard Greg Hill, the Huskies should beat out '86 conference champ Arizona and prove lively in NCAA playoff competition.

6. GEORGIA TECH

Long tall John Salley and choirboy Mark Price are gone, but head coach Bobby Cremins still has veteran scoring ace Bruce Dalrymple heading an impressive Rambling Wreck roster. The Yellow Jackets' 27-7 finish last year was a disappointment. This year may be little better, but Cremins will have developed a team for '88 that has national championship on the brain.

Veteran scoring ace Bruce Dalrymple

7. OKLAHOMA

Volatile head coach Billy Tubbs' hopes for a Big Eight conference title revolve around 6-foot-5 Darry Kennedy (division leader in scoring and rebounding) and his partner in offensive crime, 6-foot-3 Tim McCalister (who led the conference in steals, with 87). Big question: Will 6-foot-10 center Stacey King's mediocre grades make him ineligible come midseason?

8. DUKE

Gone are four top NBA draft picks (Johnny Dawkins, Mark Alarie, Jay Bilas, and David Henderson), but they leave a skyscraper front line at Duke: 7-foot-2 senior Martin Nessley, 6-foot-10 sophomore Danny Ferry, and 7-foot redshirt freshman George Burgin. Add frosh sensation Alaa Abdelnaby, New Jersey's high school player of the year, and the Blue Devils remain in contention.

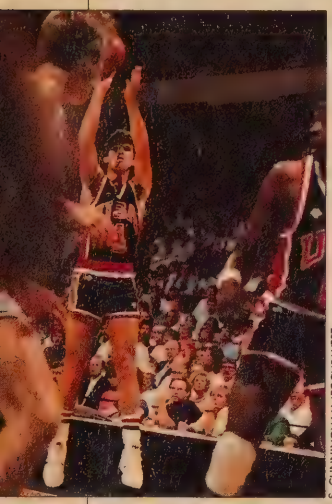
Denny Crum: don't bury the Cards yet.

9. LOUISVILLE

Coach Denny Crum's national champs are without the 1,000-point scoring trio of Jeff Hall, Milt Wagner, and Bill Thompson, but don't bury the Cardinals just yet. The only college to win the national crown twice in this decade (1980 and 1986) still has sophomore All-American center Pervis Ellison—voted the most outstanding player of last year's Final Four—and starting forward Herb Crook to cut the Cards' losses.

10. SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Here's the dark horse. Incoming coach (from Iowa) George Raveling's hopes rest on getting top performances from returning students Derrick Dowell and Rod Keller. With a fine collection of newcomers—6-foot-9 forwards Chris Munk and Bob Erbst, and transfer student Dave Wiltz, expected to become the team's playmaker at point guard—the Trojans could make a surprising Pac-Ten finish. ■



S. CUNNINGHAM/FOCUS WEST

Alford: he doesn't miss very often.

went to the Olympic village, he began playing his game."

BEATING THE RUSSIANS

Today, Alford is simply in awe of his own squad and its accomplishments. He says that the U.S. would have won a gold medal even if the Soviet Union, which boycotted the games, had sent a team to Los Angeles. "The U.S.A. beat the Soviets in the Goodwill Games, and that's the team the Russians would have brought to the Olympics," he says. "I honestly believe that if we had played that Russian team in 1984, we would have beaten them by 50 points. With guys like Michael Jordan, Sam Perkins, Wayman Tisdale, and Patrick Ewing—we would have just eaten the Russians alive."

Such brimming confidence perhaps inevitably caused Alford to stumble midway through his sophomore year at Indiana. With the Hoosiers lagging badly, Coach Knight held him responsible for failing to provide sufficient leadership. Knight even benched his star for one game. Alford buckled down and responded with yet another MVP-winning season. Asked why he benched such a good player, Knight retorted crisply: "I want him to be great!"

Alford wants that, too. He's aiming for the NBA, with his eye on the Indiana Pacers squad, followed by a career as a college coach. If that doesn't work out, he's well prepared for life outside basketball. He'll graduate next year with a degree in marketing from the college's competitive School of Business, finishing with approximately a B average.

Teammate Rickey Calloway says that Alford takes a lot of ribbing from fellow players because of his straight-arrow appearance. Guard Keith Smart likes to goad him during practice, demanding to know why Steve's carefully groomed locks never budge even when he flies through the air for a layup.

MR. CLEAN SPEAKS OUT

Alford has filmed anti-drug spots for the NCAA, and in this era of point-shaving accusations and drug scandals, there is no question that Alford's "Mr. Clean" image is good for college basketball. "Although I try to have fun, I also try to set an example for youngsters," Alford says. "You have to say no when confronted with drugs. If you're not able to say no, you're going to get caught. Competing against drugs is like competing in basketball. You've got to have dedication and a strong commitment each time you're confronted."

Alford's one brush with scandal was more humorous than outrageous, although he took it very seriously. Last year, he posed fully clothed for an Indiana University sorority's charity calendar that was sold to raise money in order to send poor children to summer camp. The NCAA decided that the venture violated Alford's amateur status. It censured him and slapped on a one-game suspension. That loomed large when, in Alford's absence, the Hoosiers lost to arch-rival Kentucky.

Many felt that Alford was being punished for the supposed sins of flamboyant coach Knight in his longstanding feud with the NCAA. But Alford, who still calls the suspension "very confusing and frustrating," blames himself for letting down the team. He has discovered that following the NCAA rule book is more important than helping a worthy cause. "I trusted that the sorority had checked it out, but they hadn't," he says. "I paid for the mistake of not checking it out myself."

Alford has also learned that playing under stress comes with the territory at Indiana. "There's a lot of pressure," he says simply. "There's pressure to excel and to excel with consistency." And during his junior-year season he rebounded, winning an unprecedented third Indiana MVP trophy as he started 28 games and led the squad with a 22.5 average.

WHO'LL STOP THE RAIN

Despite all the acclaim, there was still a rain cloud over Alford's parade. For the third time in three years, the Hoosiers failed to win a Big Ten title. Moreover, the team was embarrassed in the first game of the NCAA post-season tourney when feisty Cleveland State defeated them 83 – 79.

But this year, there's renewed optimism in Bloomington, home of the Hoosiers. Bobby Knight's team ranks as a strong contender for both the Big Ten title and a national championship. Alford and his fellow seniors are well aware that no Knight class has ever gone four years without a first-place finish in the Big Ten.

"Predictions don't get you a whole lot besides preseason attention," allows Sam Alford, "but Indiana should be pretty good this year. They have a legitimate shot at a real good season."

ALFORD THE KEY

The key to Indiana's fate is Steve Alford, a consensus preseason All-American on all polls. This season, the NCAA may be on his side. The new NCAA rule allowing three points for all buckets scored from beyond 19 feet, 9 inches, is tailor-made for Alford's game. Alford can smell victory. "The national championship would mean everything to me. It's the dream of every athlete." And his teammates, past and present, can hardly contain their excitement.

Says Mike Kovaleski, who played basketball with Alford at New Castle and is now a football star at Notre Dame: "Warn the Big Ten teams they'd better look out. Steve Alford can shoot the eyes out of a basket." ■

The Big Picture Update

NEWS AND VIEWS ON SATELLITE TV

In the September issue of Satellite ORBIT, we published an overview of the new television that we called The Big Picture. The satellite dish is the key to the new television, which encompasses everything from traditional broadcasting to videos to the proliferating new services. But, as we pointed out then, The Big Picture is constantly changing, and so from time to time, ORBIT will provide updates to keep you informed.

The good news is that the recent satellite TV industry trade show in Nashville was marked by unexpectedly strong attendance (10,000), a revival of confidence, new products and programming announcements, and a healthy "business as usual" atmosphere.

WHEN DISHES HAVE CLOUT

If you've been wondering why HBO, Showtime, and other pay-TV services first scrambled and then began courting dish owners for subscriptions, consider the mathematics. Sales of dishes are picking up. According to a survey by CSP International, a New York communications consultancy, only about 100,000 dishes were sold in the first half of 1986, compared to 265,000 in the same period last year. But CSP president Michael Tyler told the Associated Press that he believes the industry has bottomed out. "A modest turnaround appears to have begun," he said. CSP predicts sales of 190,000 dishes in the last six months of this year, with another 350,000 to 500,000 next year. The company expects that from 3.5 million to 5 million dishes will be installed by the end of 1990. What you must remember is that pay-TV services get only about 40 cents on the dollar from cable subscribers. The other 60 cents goes to the cable companies. When dish owners subscribe directly, however, the services collect the whole buck. If all 5 million dish owners in 1990 subscribed, say, to Showtime, which currently has 5.4 million cable subscribers, which do you think would have the greatest monetary clout: 40 cents or a dollar?

WHAT FINGER WAS THAT?

Following Showtime's announcement that it would be offering a package of 10 scrambled services (including The Movie Channel, MTV, and CNN), Home Box Office said that it will follow suit. No details are available yet. Programmers have not greeted with enthusiasm the concept of satellite TV services being packaged for dish owners by third-party outfits like the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA). Some, in fact, get downright upset about it. "We see the third party as just another greedy person who wants to get his finger in the pie," said CNN's Marty Lafferty.

NETWORKS OBJECT

Primetime 24, a new service from the Satellite Broadcast Network (SBN), is set to debut on November 1, retransmitting ABC, CBS, and NBC affiliate stations from New York, Atlanta, and Chicago. The service will be scrambled using the VideoCipher II system, and will cost $49.95 per year. The operators say they expect no trouble from the networks, but in fact the big three have already launched a campaign to amend copyright legislation pending in Congress to make it illegal for network signals to be resold.

KNOCK, KNOCK, WHO'S THERE?

While mass merchandisers like Sears have yet to venture into the satellite TV business, Amway Corporation, the Michigan-based direct-sales company, is getting into it in a big way. Amway aims to be a triple threat. It plans to retail computer-driven satellite TV systems for $2,995 (without installation); it has an agreement with Digitron Communications of California to set up nationwide installation; and it has a 15-year exclusive deal to distribute the newly scrambled movie station, SelecTV, to dish owners. "Our objective," says Amway spokesman Chet Grochowski, "is to become the one company the consumer needs to go to for satellite TV."

DISHY DOZEN

Twelve major satellite TV equipment distributors have banded together and named themselves the Committee for Programming Rights Access in order to package programs for dish owners. The group, headed by Ralph Warren, a distributor in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, will form a corporation to sell program packages through dealers. No word on prices yet, but Warren says the group plans to sell the programming that's available. "We don't have any preconceived ideas," he said. Announcements on packages can be expected at any time.

IRDs will be rushing to the marketplace next month. Companies with the new systems on display at the recent satellite TV trade show in Nashville used words usually associated with computers: user friendly, menu-driven, and so on. That's because computer chips make them so easy to use. Major manufacturers such as Drake, Channel Master, M/A-Com, and Houston Tracker all had IRDs on display. No one was talking about prices, but the word is that top-of-the-line IRDs will range from $600 to $900. Long awaited, IRDs had satellite TV industry folk looking pleased in Nashville. Said one observer: "I've been in the consumer electronics business for 35 years and I've never seen an industry drive the consumer away so consistently, or shoot itself in the foot so often. But the consumer keeps coming back, so there must be a business there."

SCRAMBLED PRICES

Dish owners who are waiting to see if the price of VideoCipher II descramblers will come down from the current $395 may get some good news soon. A bumper crop of the new IRDs, integrated receiver-decoders, is expected on the market in January. That could lead to a drop in sales of free-standing descramblers earlier than was predicted. M/A-Com, which manufactures the VideoCipher II, has been purchased by General Instruments. Frank Drendel, who heads the system's marketing operation, says that General Instruments is a consumer-oriented, low-cost manufacturer with "the capacity to lower costs." However, he says no price changes should be expected until about 500,000 descramblers have been sold. So far, M/A-Com has shipped about 100,000, with sales estimated at 25,000 to 30,000. The soonest that changes might come, he says, would be "the beginning of the year, more likely the middle of next year." ■

VIDEOS IN ORBIT

What's hot on videocassette this month.

Goodbye Halloween—hello Thanksgiving! November is here and it's time to start planning that family get-together. Satellite ORBIT has been looking over the latest video offerings for some warm-hearted entertainment you can share with your nearest and dearest. There are some great bargains this year: Many video companies have cut prices on family movies for the holiday season. We don't have room to mention all the good videos available, but we've picked a few of the best so you don't get stuck with any turkeys.

INDIANA SPELLS ADVENTURE

Indiana Jones is back in his most recent escapade, Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom. Once again, Harrison Ford plays the intrepid archaeologist in a swashbuckling tale filled with mystery, danger, and thrills. When we first met Indy in Raiders of the Lost Ark, he was out to foil some naughty Nazis who were planning to take over the world. This time he's up against a bizarre set of oriental religious fanatics with a similar scheme in mind. Needless to say, Indy saves the day, but not before we get to share a full measure of high-speed action and excitement. Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom is available from Paramount Home Video for $29.95. In addition, Paramount has reduced the price of Raiders of the Lost Ark to $19.95. That's a lot of adventure for less than $50.

Alice In Wonderland

CLASSIC CARTOONS

When it comes to making superb feature-length animated films, Walt Disney is tops. This year, you can get six of his finest from Walt Disney Home Video for less than $30 each. Pick of the bunch is the 1959 classic Sleeping Beauty, which is being released on home video for the very first time. The other five Disney gems are Pinocchio, Robin Hood, The Sword in the Stone, Dumbo, and Alice in Wonderland. If you want to buy Pinocchio or Robin Hood, now is the time. Both films are going back to the Disney vaults after January 1987.

Disney isn't the only studio releasing its crown jewels on video. Warner Bros. Cartoons turned 50 this year and celebrated by putting together a wonderful collection of its best cartoons—the

OUT OF THE CAGE

Paramount Home Video has good news for "trekkies." It's marking Star Trek's 20th anniversary by releasing The Cage, the original pilot for the successful TV series. First taped in 1965, The Cage was never shown on television. Fans will notice a lot of differences between the pilot and the series. The starship Enterprise is piloted by Captain Pike (Jeffrey Hunter). Captain Kirk (William Shatner) didn't take the helm until the second series pilot in 1966. The only Enterprise crew member that fans may recognize is Mr. Spock (Leonard Nimoy), though Nurse Chapel (Majel Barrett) is present, disguised as Number One. The Cage retails for about $30. If that's not enough, Paramount has also just released 10 more episodes of the TV series for about $15 each, and is offering the first three Star Trek movies—Star Trek: The Motion Picture, Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, and Star Trek III: The Search for Spock—for $19.95 each. ■

RAYMOND BURR: SOMEONE TO COUNT ON

TV's Perry Mason solves problems, but nobody knows the trouble he's seen.

Raymond Burr is a world traveler, a gardener, a gourmet, and a philanthropist. He is a wine expert, an authority on forestry, a grower of orchids, and principal owner of a newspaper. At 69, Burr is also one of the most recognizable actors in the world. His two long-running series, Perry Mason and Ironside, are always airing somewhere. A new film, Perry Mason Returns, was the highest rated TV movie of 1985. Another episode fared just as well in June, and in November (see daily listings for times; F1, 8 on C-band; K2, 1 and 5 on Ku-band) NBC will air a third, The Case of the Shooting Star.

The new Mason films are made in Canada. The producers like the cost benefits the Canadian dollar allows, but there is a much deeper connection for Burr. He was born there (in New Westminster, British Columbia) and although he moved to the United States when he was 6, the time and place of his birth had a profound impact on the man he would become. As a result of playing commanding screen characters for so many years, Burr has found that he is expected to be just as capable off screen. "People expect a great deal of me," he says. It is a measure of Burr's strength as an actor that a lifetime of sometimes harsh experience is captured in his expressive countenance and emerges as something people want to lean on. When he returns to Canada, the origins of that strength return to him.

POTATO BABY

"It started very early in my life, and long before I became an actor," Burr says. "I was born during the famine right after World War I. Canada was really hit very hard because they had sent everything they had to England. It devastated the country. All the rose bushes were dug up, and people planted potatoes. You lived on potatoes, macaroni, and rice. Starch, all starch. When I was born, I was called a 'potato baby.' I weighed 12¾ pounds and weight has been a problem all of my life."

Those of us who are not stick-figures may admire the way that Burr so handsomely carries his girth. Others are not so agreeable. "It completely destroys people when I get too heavy," he says. "But my blood pressure is the same as it was when I was 20, and I can still get up a hill faster than most people. I'm beginning to take it off. I've lost about 30 pounds, and it takes a lot before it shows on me. It's never been a consideration. Whatever I weighed, that was whatever I weighed."

The stifling legacy of Victorian British Columbia also left its mark. "My father was a very provincial Canadian," says Burr. "He didn't agree with anything in the United States at all. He was a good person, but he had his rules on the way he wanted to live his life. He did not deviate one day to the next—had to have his meals exactly at a certain time of the day. He wouldn't get on a plane or a boat. My father hated trips, while my mother loved them. She loved flying, boats, or anything. She used to drive very well and she'd take the three of us children on long trips."

Burr's parents separated when he was 6, and divorced three years later. Thirty years later, they remarried. "With a broken family,

I was sort of a father to my brother and sister," he says. "My mother was a very great lady with a lot of guts. We moved to California, but she always sent me back to see my father every year. They always were in love with each other. It was a great tragedy. All the women in my family had great strength: my grandmothers and great-grandmothers. Some good strength, and some not-so-good strength. Some overpowered their families. My father's mother lived to be 102. Six months after she died, my mother and father met and remarried, and spent the last 10 years of their lives together. In California. You could never have gotten my father to do that while his mother was alive. But he was able to break through enough, you know?"

TRADING RABBITS

Raising three children alone in the 1920s was not easy, but Burr's mother, Minerva Smith Burr, was no ordinary woman. She taught music and opened a number of music shops that became very successful. "She made a lot of money," says Burr, "but then the Depression hit and nobody was buying pianos or records or sheet music, so she lost one shop after the other. She went back to school to get another degree so that she could get better teaching jobs."

Burr would spend summers working on a sheep and cattle ranch in New Mexico in order to bring home some money. They lived in a small cottage in the hills behind Berkeley in an unfinished subdivision. The closest neighbors were a block away. "It was an Italian family with three generations living there," Burr recalls. "They made bread, cheese, and wine. I grew a garden, and we traded vegetables, rabbits, and chicken for good Italian wine and homemade Italian cheese. When we could splurge, we splurged, but we learned how to cook."

Later, they moved to an attic apartment in Berkeley, a three-story walkup. "We had no furniture, but my mother had a concert grand piano. She didn't care about possessions. The one time I ever saw her fearful of anything was when they found the only way they could get the piano up was from the outside through the windows. It went up on a pulley, and when she saw her piano dangling there on a rope over the street it was the only time I ever saw her almost break down and cry. They got it in, and we made furniture out of boxes."

MUSICAL DREAMS

Minerva Smith Burr became a celebrated concert pianist. She would play the huge Wurlitzer pipe organ with the San Francisco Symphony every Christmas. The little attic apartment was the scene of many parties, with the great composers, musicians, and opera stars who visited San Francisco in attendance. Young Burr dreamed of a musical career for himself. "I wanted to study with my mother, because she was the best teacher. But I never pushed her because I'd hear her working still at 8 o'clock at night, teaching somebody, and I thought, hell, let her have her time off."

Instead, in the late 1930s, Burr joined the Civilian Conservation Corps, which was set up for unemployed young men to work in forests around the country. He graduated into the Forest Service and learned about water and soil conservation, planting trees and fighting fires. There was a payoff later. Burr became a United Nations advisor to Fiji when they wanted to plant pine trees there. "We planted pine from the Caribbean on all the dry hills on the dry side of Fiji," he says. "They have great forests there, and I was the one who fought for fire roads, because they didn't put any fire roads in. They said, 'We're the tropics and there's plenty of rain.' I said, 'It's going to burn the hills off.' Until the hills burned off they wouldn't build any fire roads. Then they said, 'Get Burr down here.' "

Burr discovered Fiji 20 years ago. He has a thriving orchid business there and he owns a large part of the Fiji Sun newspaper. "Everyone said, 'Why would you leave a civilized place like this and go to a place like Fiji?' " he says. "I said, 'I'm going to a much more civilized place than here.' And it's true. It wasn't going from something, it was going to something. I've said many times that there are beautiful beaches and palm trees all over the world but it depends on who inhabits that part of the world as to whether it's a desirable place to go to. Fiji is one of them for me, and Portugal is another. Two great, great countries. Because of the people."

Burr has property in the Portuguese Azores, and he has a farm in Dry Creek Valley in Sonoma County, Northern California, where he lives when he's not working. But all of that came after the success of the original Perry Mason. Before that, Burr had already lived a lifetime, and an often painful one. After breaking into theater in New York and finding success on radio, he became a busy film actor, usually playing villains in movies like A Cry in the Night, Rear Window, and Crime of Passion. But his personal life, which he will not discuss, was tragic. His first wife was killed in a plane crash in 1943. A second marriage ended in divorce in 1947. His third wife succumbed to cancer in 1955. He fathered one child, a boy, who died in 1953 of leukemia.

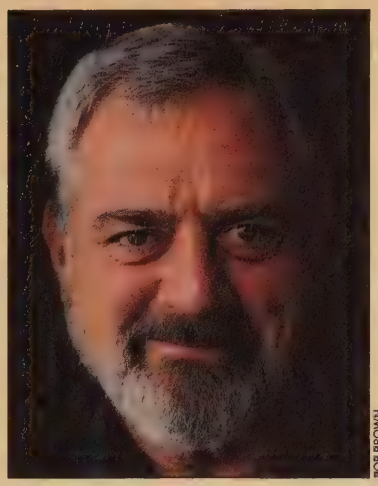
KILLER SCHEDULE

When Perry Mason came along in 1957, Burr immersed himself in it. In those days, each series had 39 episodes a season (most series today film just 22). As the title character, Burr was in almost every scene. He lived at the studio. "Fortunately, I was not married and I wasn't a parent," he says bluntly. "I would have been the worst parent in the world, and I would have been unmarried very shortly. I lived in the studio six days a week for nine years. I wanted to take out ads in the Hollywood trades warning actors, 'If you are the name of the show, don't do it. You'll kill yourself.' It depends on your family, your love life, your hopes for a life that is fairly well balanced. If you have no need for any of those things, then go ahead and do the television show. But if you need those things, you should not do the show. Ever. Because if you have a family you will break it apart. Or, you will not have a successful television show. One or the other. It cannot be both ways."

Still, after nine years as Perry Mason, Burr stepped back into another title role a year later in Ironside, which ran from 1967 to 1975. But this time he was also co-producer and he made sure his co-stars (Don Galloway and Barbara Anderson) saw plenty of action. He never spent a night at the studio. He did, however, have to change some things. "When I saw the first script, I thought it was a dreadful idea," he says. "It was a sort of cross between Batman and something. Ironside had a van with a complete forensic laboratory that you could solve any crime from. He had a wheelchair with weapons in the arms. It took a while to get it around to being a good human story."

In the years since Ironside Burr has had one short-lived series (Kingston, in 1977); he's made seven movies and 10 television specials, and has toured England on the stage. "I have not stopped working at any time," he says. He turned down the notion of remaking Perry Mason for many years because it was always suggested as a new hour-long weekly series. "I had no interest in doing another weekly show," he says. "But I said I would do the show anytime if it were feature length. Fred Silverman and Dean Hargrove came up with the plan of doing an occasional series of TV movies, and I said as long as they got Barbara Hale [who played Mason's secretary Della Street in the old series], I'd do the show."



ROB BROWN

'I IMAGINE YOU'LL SEE MORE HUMOR WITH EACH SUCCEEDING SHOW.'

Burr is pleased that the two-hour movies leave room for some humor, an element that the original series sadly lacked. "Earle Stanley Gardner [who wrote the Mason novels] and his wife both had great senses of humor, but our producers did not, so you saw very little humor from Mason at all," he says. "This time, I imagine you will see more humor with each succeeding show."

His great sorrowful eyes crinkle merrily: "People forget that my first Broadway show was a musical. I sang and danced and said funny things. Shakespeare isn't always Macbeth. Shakespeare is the Fool, too." Even with a smile on his face, Raymond Burr looks like a man you can count on. ■

SATELLITE ADVISER

Q I recall reading in Satellite Adviser about a two-step product that can be sprayed on satellite dishes to prevent snow and ice from sticking. Can you provide additional information, such as the name and address of the manufacturer, suppliers, cost, and thoughts concerning how effective it is in protecting the dish? I have already made arrangements with a local body shop to do the spraying.

A. The product is Vellox 140 hydrophobic coating. It is available from the Clifford W. Estes Company, Box 907, Lyndhurst, New Jersey 07071, phone (201) 935-2550. The Vellox 140 hydrophobic coating prevents water from accumulating on any surface that it is applied to. Antenna protection is just one of the many uses for which the coating was developed. You are right to contact a professional to do the job because the application of the coatings can be tricky. It's a two-stage process: a primer coat is applied to the surface of the antenna first, followed by the water-repellent top coat.

Q. I often wondered why I never saw any ads in Satellite ORBIT for the Basic Systems antenna positioner control head. Now I know. I let my installer talk me into buying a Basic Systems model 2140. This product is guaranteed for one year. The digital readout went bad in less than two months, and I have been hassling with my dealer for four months. He will not honor the warranty. Six weeks ago I wrote to Basic Systems at 1919 South 129 East Avenue, Tulsa, Oklahoma. So far I have not received authorization to return the device for repair or even a schematic so that I could have it repaired locally. Could you get me a diagram of the model 2140 or print it in ORBIT?

A. Basic Systems was bought by the A.J. Antunes Company last year. Antunes' address is 1045 West National Avenue, Addison, Illinois 60101. The new phone number is (312) 543-8650, or you can call (800) 251-0014. You should contact the service department using the above 800 number and explain your problem. The company will authorize you to return the unit so it can be repaired.

Q. I find most of the satellite antenna dealers in my area are unable to advise me on how to adjust my system so that I can receive the Peruvian TV signal from Intelsat IVA F1. I have been told by a couple of dealers that my antenna is not large enough to pick up that signal, but my understanding is that with today's technology my system could be upgraded. I know that with a simple piece of Teflon, my system can be changed to receive circular polarity instead of vertical-horizontal polarity. I don't care too much about getting a good quality picture as long as I can hear the news.

A. Intelsat IVA F1 was retired on July 11, 1986, but you can still receive Peruvian TV from Intelsat VA F11 located at 27.5 degrees West. Transponder 3 of this Intelsat bird carries Radio y Television Peruana, Channel 7 out of Lima, Peru. The satellite has three different types of beams to relay signals back to Earth: Western Hemisphere, global, and steerable spot beams. The effective isotropic radiated power (EIRP) of the Western Hemisphere beam is about 33.5 dBW in the Florida

QUIT YOUR JOB or START PART-TIME.
Chimney Sweeps Are Urgently Needed Now!

My name is Tom Risch. I'm going to show you how to make $200.00 a day saving people from dangerous chimney fires.

This is serious business. People are paying $55.00 to have their chimneys cleaned, and the average sweep completes the job in less than an hour. You can make $200 a day part-time—$1,000 or more a week full-time. Now before you turn the page, let me explain.

Tens of millions of people are burning wood to supplement the high cost of oil, gas, and electric heat. There are now over 50 million woodburning chimneys in the U.S.—an increase of 10 million in only one year.

As a result, an estimated 44,000 chimney fires killed almost 1,000 people last year and destroyed over 180 million dollars in property.

Thousands of chimney sweeps are needed now.

Time Bomb In Your Chimney

A dirty chimney with about a quarter inch of soot contains a highly flammable substance called Creosote. If a spark from your fireplace or woodstove ignites the creosote in your chimney—watch out! The draft gets stronger and stronger, and before you know it, the entire inside of the chimney catches on fire.

As the fire grows in your chimney, the draft also increases to a tremendous velocity. The heat, generated from the draft and the burning creosote reaches a temperature of up to 3,000° F which is hot enough to melt the mortar holding the bricks together. Secondly, small flaming balls of creosote loosen from the side of the chimney and are projected out of the top with the force of a jet engine.

Like a roman candle, these flaming creosote balls shower the area. Some land on your roof, on your lawn and on your neighbor's home. The excessive heat of the chimney can catch the wood framing of your house on fire.

The only way to avoid a disaster like this is to clean the chimney before it catches fire. This is where you come in.

Chimney Sweeping

Here's a new business where you can earn more in one hour than most jobs pay for a whole day. More in one week than a lot of people make in an entire month. You're the boss. You set the hours and best of all, it's fun. You'll work your tail off, but the business will be your baby. I've had people tell me that the August West Chimney Cleaning System literally changed their lives. Not just because of the money they are making or the fact that they use more Ivory soap, but mainly because they are motivated. They're doing their own thing and loving it.

How Much Money?

Recently I telephoned some of the people we helped get started in the chimney cleaning business. I wanted to find out—first hand—just how well they were doing. Here's what a couple of them said....

Dave Richison, Ohio

"The 3rd quarter of this year I did $23,000. The 4th quarter I did $24,000. We should hit between 55 and 60 thousand this year."

"Home heating is now the number one cause of residential fires. Eighty-six percent of wood heat related fires originate in the chimney. The demand for qualified chimney sweeps is skyrocketing and now is the time to get started," says Tom Risch, Founder of August West Systems, Inc.

Chris Nestor, Massachusetts

"My first day on the job, I cleaned seven fireplaces. Now, after sweeping over 8,000 flues, I still look forward to going to 'work' every morning — six days a week, all year round."

John Moszulski, Canada

"Last month I worked 18 days, and I made 2,600 bucks!"

"From day one we saw sweeping as a fast way to reach our goal to build a handmade house in the mountains. Our hard work starting a chimney sweeping business has paid off, and our dream house is now completed. Earn $1,000 a week, right!?? Right!"

John & Diane Goodman, Bozeman, Montana

Just what do these people do to earn that kind of money? Sweep chimneys. Six to eight a day if they're full-time. Two to three an evening, plus ten or so on the weekends for those part-timers who keep their present jobs. Since the average charge is $55 for the first and $45 for each additional in the same house, it's easy to see how John Moszulski made $2,600.00 in 18 days!

The Height of Technology

How do you clean a chimney? You do it as quickly and efficiently as possible. The more chimneys you can clean in a day the more lives and loss of property you'll save. And how do you do a good job in record time? You use the most advanced system available—The August West System.

One of the key elements in the August West System is the SootSweeper. This machine is a high-powered, high-volume dust collection unit that was designed specifically for cleaning chimneys. New filter technology is the key to its efficiency and dependability.

Other key elements of our system are an assortment of high carbon steel brushes, specially designed fiberglass cleaning rods (that let you do most jobs from below), an easy-to-follow handbook with everything from advertising to chimney design, a bi-monthly newsletter, telephone consultation and much, much more. I don't have room to go into all the details right now. Our information kit will explain everything to you.

10 Years of Dependable Service

I'd just like to say that many years and a tremendous amount of devotion have gone into the development of the August West System. We are a strong, national company with thousands of dedicated sweeps in our network! You can join us and count on us to help you build a business you can be proud of. We take pride in the quality of our equipment and service to you.

Sweep John Moszulski says, "Not only do I think your System is fantastic, but I am also totally impressed by the way you treat people who have bought your System. I have just finished my third $1000 week—on a part-time basis."

To Sum Up, Then...

Sweeping chimneys may not exactly be a "Lazy man's way to riches"...you'll work hard—but the pay is exceptional, the demand is steadily growing, and new equipment and methods make the job far easier, faster and safer than ever before. Perhaps best of all, this is one of those "dream" businesses that so many of us are always looking for: a cash business with flexible hours, low overhead and a reasonable start up cost—figure about $1900 to get started.

And don't forget, when you run a small business out of your home, you can take tax deductions for that portion of your home you use for your office and work area, as well as car payments, phone bills, utilities and anything else you use in business.

As a matter of fact a lot of sweeps pay for their system in tax savings alone.

Q. I purchased a M/A-Com H-1 satellite receiver about a year ago and was enjoying the Studioline radio service on Satcom F3, transponder 19, and Galaxy 1, transponder 13. The service was supposedly moved to Satcom F4, transponder 8, but I am unable to find it there. The Galaxy 1, transponder 13, services that are listed as still available are nowhere to be found. I was enjoying Album Tracks, All That Jazz, The Classics, and Super Hits. It was the best radio service available. Has it been scrambled, or is my receiver not working properly?

A. Studioline Cable Stereo has recently encountered some financial difficulties and is currently off the air. A Studioline representative says the company was offered for sale and its board of directors is considering bids from three undisclosed companies. Once a decision is made, the network could be back on the air within a matter of days. The contract with C-SPAN to carry Studioline is still intact, so try listening for occasional broadcasts on Satcom F4, transponder 8.

Q. I have read articles in various magazines about the future of Ku-band television. If Ku-band is the band of the future, how soon will programs be available on satellite? Will the programming be free, or will we have to pay for it? Will cable programmers be part of this technology? Are the current Ku-band satellites carrying a strong enough signal to permit the use of a small dish?

A. The future of Ku-band satellite broadcasting is bright indeed. The frequency of Ku-band transmission avoids terrestrial interference that can sometimes hinder reception at C-band. Ku-band dishes can be smaller, so town and city dwellers will be able to install satellite TV. Programmers are expected to steadily migrate from C-band to Ku-band satellites during the 1990s to reach this huge potential audience, but the move won't happen overnight and there will continue to be plenty of programming at C-band for the foreseeable future. Programming on Ku-band is expected to be similar to that currently found on C-band, with a mix of pay/premium channels and an abundance of unscrambled basic services. Those of you who own VideoCipher II descramblers will be glad to know that these decoders work equally well at Ku-band, so you won't have to buy a new descrambler.

Q. I have a M/A-Com H-1 actuator that needs repair. The dealer who sold it to me said he had called every known telephone number for M/A-Com but was always referred to (800) 344-6754. He said he had been calling that number for weeks and could not get through. I did not believe him so I wrote M/A-Com a letter. It was never answered. I have tried calling the number myself and it is always busy. After business hours a recording with a delightful southern voice comes on and you can hear what sounds like a party going on in the background. How can I get my actuator repaired if I can't get through to M/A-Com?

A. M/A-Com (now called General Instrument Cable Home Group) has recently added six more incoming lines, but as you have found, the toll free number receives a lot of calls. Another number for customer service is (704) 327-8021. To correspond with the service department, write to General Instrument Cable Home Group, P.O. Box 1729, Hickory, North Carolina 28603, and mark the envelope: Attention Paul Wilson.

Q. Our PenTec MTI 2100 satellite positioner was hit by lightning. We cannot reach PenTec through its service number. We heard the company went out of business. Local TV repairmen say they cannot get the parts to fix our positioner. Do you know where we can get new parts, or should we buy a new one?

A. There's a good chance that your 2100 can be repaired. PenTec is still in business and is still servicing its products. PenTec's telephone number is (801) 972-4817. You could also ship the unit to PenTec's service department at 2351 South 2300 West, Salt Lake City, Utah 84119. Include a check for $25 to cover parts and labor and mark the box: Attention Kay.

Q. In September 1985 I purchased a 10-foot Texas Blackmesh dish, a Uniden UST 3000 receiver, and a Uniden 710 actuator and unirotor. Shortly after it was installed, the system developed some problems. Every time the dish was moved up or down, the fuses in the actuator box would blow. My dealer told me that the motor drive was not large enough to handle the weight of the dish. He replaced the actuator with a Spectrum ST501 actuator and a Hammerblow motor drive unit. In July this year lightning struck my actuator. Is there any other actuator compatible with my system? To the best of my knowledge the motor drive unit was unaffected by the lightning strike.

A. The antenna positioner, which you refer to as the "actuator box," contains delicate electronic circuitry needed to control the motor mounted on the dish. The motor drive includes a circuit that senses the position of the antenna. Hammerblow uses several different kinds of sensing circuits in its motor drives, including optical, reed, Hall effect, and potentiometer sensors. You will need to find out which type is used in your motor drive, and buy a compatible antenna positioner. You should write down the serial number from your motor drive and call Hammerblow at (800) 841-9330 or (912) 994-5601. The service department can determine which type of sensor you have. ■

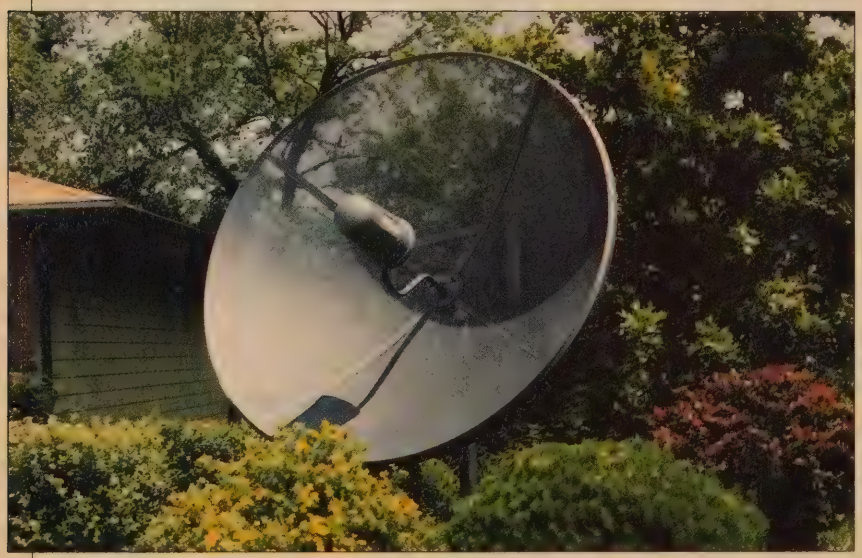
NEW DUAL-BAND FEED FROM STS

To receive satellite TV on both C-band and Ku-band, you can either buy two separate antennas or fit your C-band dish with a dual-band feed. Most dual-band feeds have a separate feedhorn for each band. But only one feed can be at the prime focus of the dish where the signal is strongest. That means the feedhorn that is offset receives a weaker signal. Now Satellite Technology Services (STS) has introduced a new dual-band feed with a unique "in-line" focus that solves this problem by placing the Ku-band feed in the middle of the C-band feed. Unlike a regular C-band feed, the new model has only one scalar ring, but STS says it is more efficient than conventional designs. Each band has separate polarization and skew controls. For further details, call STS at (314) 423-5560.

STS's unique feed keeps both satellite bands right on target.



Winegard's Pinnacle antennas improve Ku-band reception.

SMALLER HOLES MEAN BETTER PICTURES

Winegard has a new set of perforated satellite antennas designed for dual C-band and Ku-band systems. Ku-band signals reflect much better from solid dishes or ones with very tiny perforations. The new Pinnacle dishes are specially engineered with holes only 5/64 inch in diameter in order to deliver improved Ku-band signals while still providing high-quality C-band pictures. The new antennas are available in three diameters: 6, 8, and 10 feet. For more details, call Winegard at (319) 753-0121.

KEEP THAT MACHINE CLEAN

Dust and dirt can damage your VCR, so it's a good idea to keep it covered when not in use. But some protective plastic covers can cause moisture to build up inside, which may be worse for your equipment than dust. Jasco Products has a handsome new HE + VCR dustcover that prevents both problems. The cover is made of gray, quilted nylon with a see-through front panel. There are two styles: model HE6984 fits all sizes, while model HE6893 is designed for slim-line VHS or Beta VCRs. Each model is available for about $10. For more details, call Jasco Products at (405) 752-0710.

JVC'S GR-C7U CAMCORDER

JVC's latest camcorder—a combination video camera/videocassette recorder—is a 2.9-pound bundle of joy that comes with just about everything the home videophile, travel photographer, or family archivist is likely to want in an instant home movie machine. There's automatic focus and power zoom, automatic white balance and iris adjustment, high quality (HQ) picture enhancement, push-button fade in/fade out, a solid-state imaging device that helps solve lighting problems, two tape speeds, and lots more.

The obvious advantage of this camcorder is its unusually convenient size: at 4 ¾ inches wide, 6 ½ inches high, and 8 ¾ inches deep, it is small enough to fit handily into a shoebox. That's because it uses a solid-state charge coupled device (CCD) instead of a traditional video tube to create its image.

The GR-C7U uses a miniature VHS cassette tape (VHS-C TC-20) only slightly larger than a pack of playing cards. It holds up to one hour's worth of sound and pictures. With an adapter supplied with the GR-C7U, recorded cassettes can be played back directly on any full-sized VHS home deck. The cassettes allow 20 minutes of recording time in the VHS SP (two-hour) tape mode, but the camcorder also records in the EP (six-hour) mode, thus squeezing a full hour out of each tiny cassette.

Another CCD bonus is that the camcorder handles very low-light scenes remarkably well. The auto focus has a tendency to latch onto whatever lighting is available, rather than the subject you may want to tape, but instead of those annoying fishtails that trail behind light sources recorded with a camcorder using tubes, the CCD produces a much less obtrusive vertical streak. In my test recordings results were first-rate with the automatic settings. They were improved slightly by manual resetting of focus and lighting control.

CCD pictures tend to be sharp, with very good detail. But JVC hasn't let it go at that. It's added important elements to the HQ system it developed for home recorders last year that result in even better images. HQ is designed to eliminate the sawtooth edge many vertical lines exhibit in camcorder recordings. There is at least one unwanted side effect, however: there seemed to be a sharp outline around two tan dogs I taped frolicking on my shaded green lawn. But the recordings were good enough in all but the most critical applications, and made very presentable copies.

Sound quality, on the other hand, left something to be desired, particularly at the slow speed. In the SP mode, the GR-C7U's audio capabilities are up to most demands: normal speech, most natural sound effects, and even non-hi-fi music. But if you're a hi-fi buff, don't try videotaping a live piano recital or anything with a flute in it, even at the fast (SP) speed. High notes will waver and wallow as minute variations in motor speed affect the tape.

Being compact and lightweight, the GR-C7U is a positive pleasure to tote around. For two quick trips, I rejected its somewhat unwieldy carrying case (which almost doubles the weight) in favor of a tote bag that left room for two extra battery packs and two blank cassettes. The camcorder proved to be a remarkably rugged piece of equipment provided it's not dropped down a flight of stone steps and doesn't get sand or salt spray in its eye.

One price of portability, however, is the shakiness of distant objects, particularly when photographed with the 6:1 zoom lens and without external support for the camera. My hand simply couldn't hold the camera steady enough to prevent some landscapes from looking jittery. The solution is to use a tripod or rest the camcorder on a flat surface.

There is a small black-and-white monitor for watching what you're shooting and for playing back what you've just recorded. An adjustable eyepiece makes it easier to see the screen for those who wear glasses. Even so, I had trouble picking out details on the postage-stamp-sized screen. You might consider using Panasonic's color PocketWatch miniature TV as a monitor; it can be plugged directly into the GR-C7U's video output.

There is a great deal to like about this camcorder—its compactness, ease of use, generally excellent video results, and attractive appearance. I have a feeling that it will be on many family gift lists for Christmas. ■

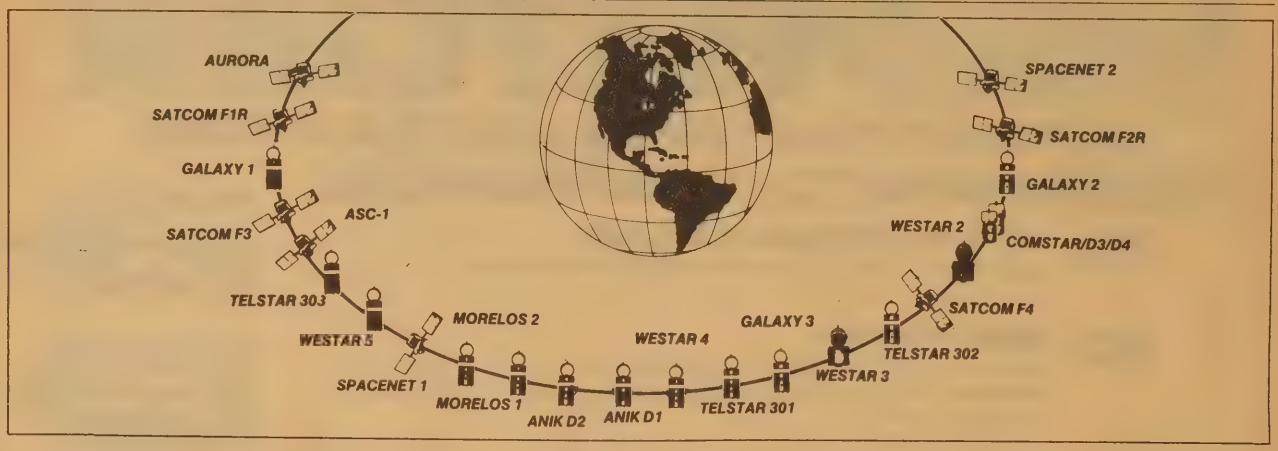
HOW TO USE BIRDWATCHER



Because there is so much to watch on satellite TV, we have designed special sections to make finding your favorite shows easy. Take a moment here to discover how to get the best out of Birdwatcher.

• What's New: Late-breaking news about satellite TV issues, services, and programs. See Page B3.

• The Birds at a Glance: A handy reference to the most popular services on both C-band and Ku-band satellites. Scrambled and unscrambled services are color-coded. Space is provided at the top of the chart for you to write in your actuator numbers. See Pages B4 and B5.

• Sports in Orbit: A complete alphabetical rundown of sports on satellite TV. Events are then listed day by day in chronological order. See the Blue Pages, starting on Page B6.

• Movies in Orbit: A selection of movies of special interest is followed by a comprehensive list of all the films being shown this month in alphabetical order. See the Gold Pages, starting on Page B14.

• Specials in Orbit: A selection of programs of added interest is followed by a comprehensive list of all the specials being shown this month in alphabetical order. See the Red Pages, starting on Page B47.

• The Daily Listings: A comprehensive satellite TV program guide with shows listed by satellite and transponder number, beginning with the westernmost major satellite in orbit (Satcom F1). The day, date and hours (Eastern Time) covered are shown at the top of each page. Time bars show when the programs begin by time zone (Eastern, Central, Mountain, and Pacific). See the White Pages, starting on Page B53.

• Today's Picks: For each day there is a selection of notable films, specials, sports, and top series. See the White Pages.

• Prime Time Highlights: For each day there is a grid listing the prime-time (ET) shows on 28 of the most popular services. See the White Pages.

• Orbit Plus: Below each Prime Time Highlights grid there is information about special programming (see the Contents Page, B1, for details) and snippets on your favorite stars. See the White Pages.

• Bookmark: Your handy bookmark lists Services by Satellite and Services Alphabetically. See Page B33.

• Services in Orbit: Complete details on all the TV and radio services on C-band and Ku-band are listed in satellite order. See the Back of the Book White Pages, Page B235.

• Subscription Information: Details of how to subscribe to scrambled services and program packages are given. See the Back of the Book White Pages, Page B240.

• Birdwatcher Codes: We use codes to indicate each satellite in our guide. For example, G1 is the code for Galaxy 1. A key to these codes appears below. In order to provide a complete guide to satellite TV, Birdwatcher strives to include all programs available on all services, including those that are scrambled. A black diamond (♦) next to a program title or service means it is scrambled but available to dish owners by subscription. An open diamond (◊) indicates the few services that are scrambled but not available to the general U.S. public. A check mark (✓) next to the title of a movie or special means that the program is airing in the clear. Other codes used in Birdwatcher are detailed at the beginning of the Gold and White Pages.

WHAT'S NEW

LEGISLATION MEETS DEFEAT

The satellite TV industry's last hope for legislation this year, S. 2823, met with defeat in October by a 54-44 vote.

The bill, known as the Satellite Television Security and Fair Marketing Act, stipulated that: 1) scrambled programming be made available to dish owners at prices comparable to those charged by cable operators to their subscribers; 2) programmers set criteria their distributors must meet and not discriminate against non-cable entities; 3) programmers not restrict cable operators from selling outside their franchise areas; 4) a single technical standard be used for all decoders and scrambled programming; and 5) the maximum penalty for future Captain Midnights be raised to $250,000 and/or 10 years in prison.

Those in the home dish industry consider the narrow 10-vote margin to be a moral victory. "It was a bully-good struggle," commented Fred Finn of the Satellite TV Viewing Rights Coalition. "Most major legislation suffers setbacks. The test is how well it can come back."

Sen. Albert Gore, co-sponsor of S. 2823

NEW SERVICES

• The Talcott Mountain Science Center will be airing four informative telecourses on W4, 19 airing Saturdays from 2-3:30 pm ET. The series of programs is titled Science Unscrambled: The SciStar Science Series.

• PrimeTime 24, airing ABC, CBS, and NBC programming, plans to begin broadcasting 24 hours daily on G3 beginning November 1. Transponders have not been determined. The service, due to scramble with the VideoCipher II system, will be available at a cost of $49.50 a year.

• QVC (Quality Value Convenience), a new shopping service, has plans to launch on F3, 8 sometime in November. Plans call for 24 hours of daily programming.

• The Crazy Eddie Shopping Network plans to debut on F4, 14 on October 20. The service, airing daily from 4 pm to 2 am ET, will feature home shopping with a game show atmosphere.

• Video Mall, a shopping service that also features the latest in business venture programming, has launched on G1, 22. Broadcast hours are Monday - Saturday, 3 am to 3 pm; Sunday, 3 am to 10 am ET.

PROGRAMMING UPDATE

• The Rodeo Sports Page, featuring rodeo matches and information, is now airing on G3, 2 on Saturdays from 8 to 8:30 am ET, repeating from 8:30-9 am.

• The SportsChannel N.Y. is now transmitting occasionally on F4, 12.

• Business Television Network is transmitting FNN programming on W4, 10 on weekdays from 5:30 to 6:30 pm ET.

SERVICE CHANGES

• The following radio services have moved from G1, 3 to W5, 13, using the new SCS transmission system: Moody Broadcasting Network, StarStation, Country Coast-To-Coast, Stardust, Rock 'n' Hits, Seeburg/Lifestyle Adult Contemporary, and Seeburg/Lifestyle. Reception of radio services transmitted with SCS requires special equipment. Several manufacturers are considering development of SCS receiving equipment for the backyard dish market.

• CBN (Christian Broadcasting Network) will cease simulcasting on F3, 8 in November. The radio services on F3, 8, Tempo Easy Listening, Tempo Jazz, and Tempo Christian, will move to G1, 11.

• CVN (Cable Value Network) has moved from F3, 18 to F3, 14 and is now available 24 hours daily.

• SAH (Shop At Home) is now airing 24 hours daily on F4, 15.

• The Senate Republican Conference News is airing daily from 3:45 to 4:45 pm on G3, 5.

SERVICES GONE DARK

• XTV - The FUN Channel, on S1, 5, stopped transmitting in August. The company filed for chapter 11 bankruptcy on August 25th; its plans are unknown. For more information write to XTV, 1 Summit Ave., Suite B-103, Ft. Worth, TX 76102.

• TSS (Television Shopper's Showcase), on F4, 14, is no longer transmitting.

• AMEN (American Music Entertainment Network) on F4, 15, has gone dark.

SCRAMBLING UPDATE

• Both WGN (G1, 3) and The Sports Network (AD1, 2) will be scrambled on November 1. WGN, using the Videocipher II system, will be available from the Superstar Connection. The Sports Network will be scrambled with the Oak/Orion and subscriptions will not be available to the general U.S. public.

• CBN (G1, 11) and ESPN (G1, 9) have plans to begin test scrambling with the Videocipher II system on November 1.

• WTBS (G1, 18) and Tempo (F3, 6) will begin testing in November and plan to be scrambled full-time with the Videocipher II by January 1.

• The MTV Networks—MTV (F3, 11), VH-1 (F3, 15), Nickelodeon E. (F3, 1), and Nickelodeon W. (F4, 4)—are tentatively scheduled to begin test scrambling on December 31 using the Videocipher II system. The services could be scrambled full time by April 1, 1987 and subscriptions will be available from Showtime.

MOVIES IN ORBIT

MORE THAN A FACE IN THE CROWD

The power that popular personalities have to influence us has seldom been more devastatingly exposed than in Elia Kazan's 1957 movie A Face in the Crowd (on the Disney Channel, G1, 4 and 24, this month; see November Movies for dates and times). A shrewd but beguiling country entertainer (Andy Griffith) is pushed into national TV fame by an ingenuous reporter (Patricia Neal). He comes to believe that he can sell his audience on anything, and allows his popularity to be exploited and corrupted.

Griffith has tasted that kind of popular regard, but he says he was never manipulated, nor was he tempted to misuse his influence. "I don't think the character in A Face in the Crowd was manipulated," he says. "He did a number on himself. He believed the things that were happening to him. There's a line near the end: 'I am a force. I am a power!'

"My personality doesn't go that way. There has never been a problem, for a number of reasons. I can be fooled for a short while, but I don't think I can be manipulated. Certainly not by men. A woman might be able to do it, but I don't think men can do it."

Griffith says he spent three of the best months of his life making A Face in the Crowd. "It was a crash course in acting under Elia Kazan," he says. "It was very difficult playing a megalomaniac. Most parts are not that difficult to play."

EDITOR'S PICKS

See November Movies marked ● for playdates. Scrambled movies are indicated ♦, unscrambled, ✓

AL CAPONE ✓
Rod Steiger snarls his way to the top of Chicago's trashpile in the definitive screen portrait of the bloodthirsty Prohibition-era hoodlum.

THE BEGUILED ✓
A sardonic Civil War drama in which wounded Union soldier Clint Eastwood (out of character, and very good) seeks help from some Southern ladies and gets more than he bargained for.

THE CANDIDATE ✓
A timely reminder in an election month of the backroom games of politics. Idealist Robert Redford learns how to play dirty to win votes.

CHARLIE BUBBLES ✓
Albert Finney directed himself in a penetrating look at a man whose success in life is hollow. The film wanders, but finally hits the mark.

COMFORT AND JOY ♦
Droll comedy about a lovelorn Glasgow disc jockey who unaccountably finds himself in the middle of a crime wave involving rival ice cream companies.

THE ENEMY BELOW ✓
Gripping tension as Robert Mitchum's U.S. destroyer and Curt Jurgen's German U-boat meet in a slow dance of death in the Atlantic during World War II.

GET CARTER ✓
London hit man Michael Caine heads north to knock some gangsters' heads when his brother is killed in a tense and sometimes nasty little thriller.

HELL IS FOR HEROES ✓
Tough antiwar picture with Steve McQueen losing his marbles as he leads James Coburn, Bobby Darin, and Bob Newhart in a grim but pointless battle.

LAUGHTER IN PARADISE ✓
A group of daffy British eccentrics must earn their inheritance by performing outrageous tasks. Alastair Sim and Joyce Grenfell will have you falling off your chair.

THE MAN WHO KNEW TOO MUCH ♦
A grand Alfred Hitchcock thriller with James Stewart and Doris Day mixed up in Moroccan intrigue and a crucial clash of cymbals.

PICNIC ♦
Sexy William Holden stirs up a small town and gets the women all hot and bothered, especially cool Kim Novak in her best screen role.

THE RULING CLASS ✓
Peter O'Toole is the utterly mad but very sweet heir to an English lordship in a bizarre satire of the British class system worthy of Monty Python.

THE SHOOTING PARTY ✓
Fine words and fine acting (from John Gielgud, and James Mason in his last film) as an upper-class British family begins to crumble.

TIGER BAY ✓
Young Hayley Mills is a witness to murder, but she ends up protecting killer Horst Buchholz, and the suspense is terrific as detective John Mills closes in.

Note on ratings: MPAA is the Motion Picture Association of America, which rates films on release in theatres. Unrated films were either made before ratings were introduced or were made for television. The Adult boldface rating indicates unrated films with strong sexual content.
Note on running times: films with commerical breaks will often run longer than the running time stated. Check Daily Listings to be sure.

SPECIALS IN ORBIT

CAPTAIN EO LEADS THE DANCE

It's a short movie, just 17 minutes, playing in only two theaters, but it's one of the fall's blockbusters. It's Captain Eo, the new 3-D film attraction at Disneyland and Disney World. Produced by George Lucas and directed by Francis Ford Coppola, it stars Michael Jackson in a music- and special-effects fan's dream. Whoopi Goldberg reveals how it all came about in The Making of Disney's Captain Eo on the Disney Channel (✓) this month (see November Specials for dates and times).

There's much more music to be seen in November, from classical to jazz to rock. Here are some of the highlights (see November Specials marked ● for dates and times):

Anima—Symphonie Fantastique (✓): A full-length video performance of Berlioz' symphony by the Budapest Philharmonic.

Billie Holliday (✓): A profile of the tragic jazz singer 25 years after her death.

Bob Dylan in Concert (♦): From his True Confessions tour in Australia, with Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers.

Coltrane Legacy (♦): An examination of the legendary jazz saxophonist's technique with film of performances from the '50s with the Miles Davis Quintet.

Eric Clapton and Friends (♦): The British rock guitarist in concert with guest Phil Collins.

Ernani (✓): Verdi's opera,

Michael Jackson in Captain Eo

based on the Victor Hugo play, stars Placido Domingo, Mirella Freni, and Renato Bruson.

Huey Lewis and the News: Before! (♦): Making the video for their latest hit, "Stuck With You."

Manhattan Transfer (♦): Vocal tricks and jazz with songs from the group's Vocalese album.

Mozart Requiem (✓): Sir Colin Davis conducts the Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra and Chorus in the unfinished work Mozart wrote for his own funeral.

P.D.Q. Bach: The Abduction of Figaro (✓): An operatic spoof blending slapstick comedy with Mozart, from the Minnesota Opera company.

Phil Collins: No Jacket Required (♦): The singing drummer in concert in Dallas, 1985, with songs from his hit album.

Trumpet Kings (✓): Jazz horn player Wynton Marsalis pays tribute to Bunny Berigan, Miles Davis, and others, with rare film footage of a Louis Armstrong-Dizzy Gillespie duet.

What a Day For a Daydream (✓): John Sebastian sings songs from his days with The Lovin' Spoonful and is joined by the New Rhythm and Blues Quartet and The Brass Band.

Angela Lansbury, Murder, She Wrote

ANGELA LOVES JESSICA

Four-time Academy Award-winner and Broadway veteran Angela Lansbury said she jumped at the chance to play sleuth/writer Jessica Fletcher in the popular CBS series Murder, She Wrote (T1, 2; Sundays, 8 pm ET) because she liked the character so much. "I liked what I visualized her [Jessica] to be when I read the original script," says Lansbury. "I felt she was courageous and full of excitement and energy about life and people. There was something about her quality that I felt I could adapt myself to very easily and very comfortably."

Streetwise, the struggle to survive

STREETWISE

Tiny (pictured) is 14, an undersized child prostitute whose tragic life is one of those profiled in Streetwise, which premieres on Bravo (F4, 2) on November 3 at 8:00 pm (ET) and will also be shown November 13 and 16. This critically acclaimed, Oscar-nominated documentary examines the lives of nine exploited teenagers attempting to stay alive by learning the rules of dumpster-diving, how to stay warm on freezing nights, the ways of the trains, and other skills necessary for surviving on the streets. Streetwise is directed by Martin Bell and features music by Tom Watts.

John Hillerman, Magnum P.I.

OUT-ENGLISHING THE ENGLISH

"Even the English think I'm English," says John Hillerman, who plays the aristocratic Higgins on CBS' Magnum, P.I. (T1, 2; Wednesdays, 9 pm ET). Would you believe that Hillerman actually hails from Texas? One night he left his cattle-country drawl at home and took a new "English" identity and accent to a party in Hollywood. "You sure sound phony," said another guest. But that was the first and last time anybody sneered at Hillerman's speech. "I love doing the Higgins character," says Hillerman, adding, "If Higgins and I do not share the same heritage, we do share the same personality."

Don Johnson, Miami Vice

DON JOHNSON, CHOIRBOY

The Miami Vice (F1, 8; Fridays, 9 pm ET) star says he first got the show-biz bug singing in the choir of a country church before he was old enough to go to school. A native of Galena, Missouri, Johnson says, "I would sing harmony because I could sing really high at that age. It was fun getting all the attention. People would come up to me after church and pinch me and give me a quarter." Miami Vice, says Johnson, has changed his lifestyle. No more booze and wild parties--he's pursuing projects he's wanted to do since leaving Missouri, including making a record album.

Robert MacNeil, The MacNeil/ Lehrer Newshour

THE PUBLIC MACNEIL

Robert MacNeil, who teams nightly with Jim Lehrer on PBS' MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour (W4, 17; 7 pm ET), is excited about public TV news journalism. Once an anchorman on NBC, MacNeil says he grew weary of the "brevity, hype, flashiness, and glitziness" of commercial network news. MacNeil says he enjoys "spending more time with the story, questioning and not persecuting the guests, and leaving the synthesis of opinions to the viewer. We are risking dullness," he continues, "but we are also pursuing important issues."

Marj Dusay, Capitol

EASY FOR DUSAY? NO WAY

How do daytime stars manage to memorize all that material? "I do an average of 12 to 20 lines a day," says Marj Dusay, who plays master manipulator Myrna Clegg on CBS' Capitol (M-F: T1, 2; 2:30 pm ET. T2, 16, 5:30 pm ET). Getting accustomed to the grueling schedule of a soap star was quite an adjustment for Dusay. "The first six months I thought I would die," she says. "You're not used to learning that many lines a day, and I've never been a quick study. You have to revamp your short-term memory so that you can get with it."

Roy Thinnes, One Life To Live

THE MAN WHO SAVED THE WORLD

Don't be too surprised if you spot Alex Crown (actor Roy Thinnes) looking over his shoulder in ABC's One Life to Live (M-F: T1, 10; 2 pm ET. T2, 10; 5 pm ET). He may be on the lookout for little green men. Thinnes spent some time in the 1960s fighting off alien hordes as David Vincent in ABC's series The Invaders, and people still approach him in the street to talk about Unidentified Flying Objects. "I was interested in UFOs before the show started," Thinnes says, "but while I was doing it, viewers sent me tons of information on the subject from around the world. I have a box in the garage filled with the stuff I chose to save."

Marla Gibbs, 227

MARLA LIKES SECURITY

Marla Gibbs, who spent 11 years playing Florence on The Jeffersons, says she never looked at her part in that series as success. In fact, she kept working as an airline reservationist for two years after landing the part of Florence. "Show biz is kinda shaky," she says, "and besides, I didn't want to give up all those [airline] passes!" Gibbs' current hit sitcom is a Jeffersons spin-off, 227 (F1,8; Saturdays, 8:30 pm ET). The concept for 227 began in Gibbs' own Crossroads Arts Academy group as an adaptation of a show set in the '50s.

Pam Dawber, My Sister Sam

ALIEN INFLUENCE

"I had absolutely no experience when I went into Mork and Mindy," says Pam Dawber. "I learned everything from Robin Williams (co-star Mork)." Mork's Orkan influence seems to have paid off for Dawber, she's now the leading character in CBS's sitcom My Sister Sam (T1, 2, Mondays, 8:30pm ET). Dawber's new role is a little more down-to-earth than the old one. She plays a San Francisco photographer with a 16-year-old sister (newcomer Rebecca Schaeffer) who is a little wild and unpredicable. But after coping with Mork on Mork & Mindy ("It was like doing comedy in an insane asylum") it should be a piece of cake.

Chuck Norris, one-man army

WPIX MACHO MONTH

Karate buffs and martial arts aficionados will want to follow the raging feet of single-combat artist Chuck Norris on superstation WPIX (F4, 19) this month as the quintessential macho man goes after the bad guys in four fast-action "vengeance" movies. The Norris one-man army kicks, feints, and punches his way through The Octagon, with Lee Van Cleef, on November 2; A Force of One, co-starring Jennifer O'Neill, on the 19th; An Eye for an Eye, with Christopher Lee as the villain, on the 20th, and Forced Vengeance, set in Hong Kong, on November 21.

Abby Dalton, Falcon Crest

A TIME TO DIE

She's done it before, and it seems that it's time for her to do it again: Falcon Crest's Julia Cumson (Abby Dalton) must die. Julia presumably died in a burning cabin in the '83 – '84 season finale, but turned up very much alive a few months later. Now Julia is supposed to die again. Despite a report in the National Enquirer, Abby Dalton is not endorsing a reader poll aimed at rescuing Julia. "I think the poll is the tackiest thing I have ever heard of," says Dalton. Perhaps Falcon Crest (T1, 2; Fridays, 10 pm ET) has seen the last of Julia.

Howard Cosell

COSELL: HE DOES IT HIS WAY

Does sportscasting's big mouth miss the TV limelight? It doesn't sound like it. Since leaving the television scene, Cosell has joined the ranks of print journalists. He says, "I enjoy what I'm doing now. I enjoyed TV when I did it, and I left it when I didn't enjoy it any more. There's a time to reap and a time to sow, a time to come and a time to go." He adds, "And I did it my way and I went my way, period." About his syndicated sports column, he says, "I like writing because somebody's got to tell the truth somewhere, and it's easier in print than in broadcasting."

ANIMAL PATHFINDERS ON NOVA

It's autumn across America, and birds are flying south for the winter. The migratory monarch butterflies have already flown. Everywhere, animals on the move seem to know exactly where they're going. How do they know when to migrate, and when to begin the return "home"? This month NOVA explores animal migration in The Mystery of the Animal Pathfinders. Says Neil Goodwin of Peace River Films, producers of Pathfinders, "There's very little known about migration, and that's what makes it so interesting." Pathfinders airs November 25 at 8 pm (ET) on PBS (W4, 15).

Reni Santoni, Sanchez Of Bel Air

SANCHEZ OF BEL AIR

For half an hour of cross-cultural hilarity, tune in to USA Network's brand-new sitcom, Sanchez of Bel Air, (G1, 21; Fridays, 8 pm ET). Sanchez is what happens when an upwardly mobile Hispanic clothing designer and manufacturer moves his family to swanky Bel Air, California. Reni Santoni, whose credits include Cobra, Enter Laughing, Dirty Harry, and Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid, was seen most recently in an ongoing featured role on Hill Street Blues.

NOV 23rd TO 29th

"Eating steering wheels isn't all it's cracked up to be. But it's the only way to prove how safety belts save lives. So buckle up the next time you hop in the car. Sure, it'll eliminate our job. But that's fine. It's a job we can live without."

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY. BUCKLE YOUR SAFETY BELT.

INTERNATIONAL WILD FEEDS

The satellites F1, W5, W4, and W3 are used to transmit a variety of international news, sports, and network wild feeds.

F1, tr. 24 is used everyday by RAI Uno (Radio TeleVisione Italiana One) to transmit the day's news from Italy at approximately 1:45 pm (ET).

TV Globo, a Brazilian network, uses F1, tr. 5 to relay feeds from around the world to Brazil usually in the afternoons (ET).

Worldnet has been seen occasionally on F1, tr. 12 and 20. Worldnet, a service produced by the U.S. Information Agency, provides video programming that explains White House policies and related events. TV stations around the world rebroadcast all or part of the daily feeds.

CNN's Washington Bureau has been spotted on F1, tr. 20. Other services using F1 include ABC (American Broadcasting Company), ABC (Australian Broadcasting Company), CBC, NBC, ITN (Independent TV Network), TCN 9, VISNEWS, and WTN (Worldwide TV Network). Look for these services on transponders 2, 4, 5, 11, 12, 15, 16, 17, 18, 20, 22, and 24 on F1.

More international feeds have been found on W5, W4, and W3. Brightstar, VISNEWS, and the EBU (European Broadcasting Union) all use the Westar satellites as well as F1.

JISO (Japanese International Joint Users Organization) and other Japanese networks use W4, tr. 13 and other transponders on W4, usually in the afternoons (ET).

NOTE: Wild feeds are satellite transmissions that, while not regularly scheduled, can be tracked with regularity to offer viewers a wider selection of unscrambled programming. Wild feeds are subject to change and we would appreciate the help of our readers in keeping our list current. Send your observations to: Satellite ORBIT, Information Group, P.O. Box 53, Boise, ID 83707.

To 27 million Americans, this scene is a fairy tale.

Because 27 million American adults can't read a child's bedtime story, can't read a street sign, can't read . . . period.

Functional illiteracy is a problem that now affects 1 out of 5 American adults. It can rob them of a decent living, it can rob them of self respect. It can rob them of the simplest of human pleasures . . . like reading a letter from a friend.

You can change that by supporting the fight against illiteracy. Your tax-deductible contribution to the Coalition for Literacy will be used two ways. First, it will help continue the campaign to increase public awareness of the problem. Second, it will help us generate new resources for literacy.

To send a contribution, fill out the coupon. Or bill it directly to your credit card by calling 1-800-228-8813. Helping takes so little. And illiteracy can rob people of so much.

Volunteer Against Illiteracy. The only degree you need is a degree of caring.

TRACKER™

EXPERIENCE THE EIGHTH WONDER

TRACKER SYSTEM VIII™

Houston Tracker Systems is proud to introduce the TRACKER SYSTEM VIII™. With its modular design, the SYSTEM VIII brings all of the most advanced home satellite television components and functions together at last in one completely integrated unit. A combination satellite receiver, antenna positioner and descrambler (incorporating VideoCipher® II descrambling technology), the SYSTEM VIII offers a wealth of innovative features that make operating a satellite system easier than ever!

Among its many outstanding features are automatic C to KU Band LNB switching, a computerized user-expandable on-screen graphic/display, PLL synthesized tuning, a programmable recording timer,and VNR (Video Noise Reduction) circuitry, which improves threshold performance on weak signals and combats terrestrial interference on a per channel/satellite basis. For ease of installation, we've included a menu-driven set-up. Furthermore, polarity tuning, and incremental antenna positioning based on satellite signal strength, are automatically executed with a single press of the store button.

The TRACKER VIII, incorporating a microcomputer-based memory, recalls automatic/pre-programmed polarity settings, quartz-locked channel tuning and stereo/mono/audio frequencies. In fact, the SYSTEM VIII's memory is even capable of providing instant recall of up to 100 user-programmable "favorite satellite/channel" combinations — and of 100 audio subcarriers as well — a Tracker exclusive! And the full-featured UHF wireless remote control, a Tracker trademark, even includes wide-range volume control with one-button muting. The remote has a range of up to 200 feet, allowing operation of the system from other rooms within the home.

All of these features may leave the impression that the SYSTEM VIII is difficult to operate. On the contrary, it automates, through advanced microprocessor design, all of those tedious adjustments and tuning requirements of yesterday's systems. For the ultimate in sophisticated simplicity, the TRACKER SYSTEM VIII is truly the "eighth wonder of the world" in satellite TV reception.
